Rosendale Meeting: More Fireworks

By SHANE CROSBY

ROSENDALE

Village police were put to use for the second time since being placed on duty at monthly meetings of the village trustees as Mayor William P. Curran called for the ejection of a former water commissioner and a present fire trustee for being "out of order" Wednesday during heated arguments.

Curran also threatened senior village trustee William Ritter with explusion when the trustee continued objecting to the ousters after being told to stop by the mayor.

Former water commissioner Robert Sheehan and Active Hose Company Trustee William Einemann became the second and third persons to be removed by police from the meetings since his administration began in March. The first person to be removed by Curran was former trustee Joseph LaFera in May.

The mayor, hands shaking as he ordered the men out one after the other, had started posting village police at the May meeting after he said outbursts had disrupted hearings and meetings in the past.

Two officers assisted the former water commissioner out of the room in the firehouse after Sheehan and Curran argued over the use of water district property by youth groups with village permission.

The mayor told Sheehan several times that he should keep his remarks down or he would be ejected and finally had him removed after he said he was "out of order" in interrupting Curran.

Sheehan balked as police began to escort him outside the building, saying he had a right to remain in the outer firehouse area because he is a fire captain. Curran continued to call for his removal from the building and not only the room, but Fire Trustee Einemann rose and in effect ordered the ousted man to remain.

Einemann protested to the mayor and said as Sheehan's superior on the department he wanted Sheehan in the building, at which Curran ordered police to remove the fire trustees.

Village Trustee Ritter, who had engaged in a three way argument with Curran and Sheehan, protested the removal of both spectators saying "this is not Germany."

Ritter challenged Curran to remove him saying "I'm the senior trustee here. You can't shut me up." Curran said "do you want me to throw you out?"

The first person ejected by Curran since taking office in March, former trustee LaFera joined the action in which objection was made to a notice announced by Curran that trespassers would not be allowed on property of the water district.

Ritter, LaFera, Sheehan and others present objected to barring the use of water district land to youth groups such as Boy, Girl and Cub Scout units.

Curran announced the order at the meeting after he said repeated damage had been caused by trespassers on the properties in Rosendale and Tillson.

The order named the Rosendale Auto Club as having been given permission to use the Tillson Water Works area in the past, but Curran said, although the club apparently no longer exists, the remains of "over 10 wrecked automobiles are distributed in and about the Works."

The properties off limits to all except officials of the village are.

Mountain Road Reservoir, its tributaries and confines and environs; the Still Pond Reservoir and its environs that belong to the village, including the pump house and chlorinating plant; the Tillson Quarry and water supply source and all of the 40 acres of property owned by the village at that location, and including any and all other water facilities, chlorinating plants and storage facilities of the village.

The order shall take effect immediately, the mayor said.

Other major items discussed at the meeting included the setting of July 30 in the evening to hold a public hearing on the purchase of water meters for the village's 400 users. Curran is seeking a $15,000 bond issue to cover the cost of the meters and installation.

Public hearings were also scheduled to discuss three ordinances — one on dog control, another on hot rodding cars in the village, and the third on adoption of the State Building Code. All three are scheduled to be aired on Aug. 20 starting at 7 p. m.

XCVIII—No. 224 CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 10, 1969 PRICE TEN CENTS 65 CENTS A WEEK BY CARRIER

JUST IN CASE — As rescuers in the fireproof escape vehicle minister to an "injured astronaut," others drag another spaceman, still strapped to his spacecraft contour chair, to safety in a simulated accident to practice emergency procedures. All members of the launch support team for the Apollo-11 moon shot began stepped up activity at the Kennedy Space Center as the countdown for a July 16 launch neared its start. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Hanoi Rips U.S. But Gives Promise To Release Three

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam charged today U.S. planes had bombed some of its villages but said because of its "humanitarian policies" the promised release of three American prisoners would take place anyway.

The statement was made by Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief negotiator at the peace talks, before entering today's 25th formal negotiating session.

Thuy, just back from high-level consultations in Hanoi, said U.S. planes had staged bombing raids on North Vietnamese villages July 7-8, killing a number of persons and causing material damage.

"We protest against such inhuman acts on the part of the United States," he said. "But this will not prevent us from releasing soon these prisoners. We will continue to apply our humanitarian policies."

Thuy spoke as American pacifist David T. Dellinger, chairman of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, met with U.S. officials about the prisoner release. He said he already had met twice with North Vietnamese officials.

A step in the right direction but it's only a drop in a bucket. That's the view of Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield in describing President Nixon's order to withdraw some 15,000 military men from overseas bases during the next year. The White House order exempted Vietnam and other spots of trouble and tension. . . . Story on Page 30.

Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. negotiator, told newsmen before today's session that striking a bargain with North Vietnam on exchange of prisoners would be one of his key negotiating points today.

Observers said Thuy's remarks may have indicated that Hanoi would be willing to release other American prisoners in the near future.

Dellinger, who resides in New York, said one of the North Vietnamese officials he saw was Col. Ha Van Lau, the deputy chief negotiator. He said they discussed the composition of a pacifist team to be sent to Hanoi to meet the prisoners.

The whole thing now hinges on American agreement that the prisoners will not be captured by the Army as soon as they are released," Dellinger said. 'I don't think the prisoners should be under any political pressure of any kind—not from the antiwar movement and not from the Army.

'It is wrong for the Army to whisk them away and debrief them, which means brainwash them."

Dellinger apparently was referring to what occurred in August, 1968, when U.S. military officials took three freed pilots from their pacifist escorts in Vientaine following their relase by the North Vietnamese.

Before entering today's negotiating session, Allied officials said they were looking to chief North Vietnamese negotiator Xuan Thuy for a key in breaking the talks deadlock.

Thuy, who is also minister of state in the Hanoi government, returned last week from an extended stay in Hanoi.

In the war zone, U.S. commanders threw all the firepower at their disposal into smashing a North Vietnamese ambush that killed four Americans and wounded 11 northwest of Saigon, military spokesmen said today.

Dive bombers, tanks, helicopter gunships and artillery salvos broke up the guerrilla attack on a U.S. convoy 65 miles from Saigon and killed 22 of the North Vietnamese ambushers, the report said.

The battle Wednesday was followed by 29 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese rocket and mortar barrages into Allied towns and camps which took a costly toll in civilian casualties.

It was the second Communist ambush in as many days—nine GIs died and six were wounded Tuesday in one on the northern coast—but provided the only heavy combat reported as the battle lull entered its 20th day.

The U.S. Command said today 153 Americans were killed in action last week during the lull in battle — the fewest GIs slain in any week in six months.

Military spokesmen said the level of fighting remained low Wednesday except for a North Vietnamese ambush that killed four Americans and wounded 11 northwest of Saigon. The attackers lost 22 dead.

Mooncount Ready for Apollo 11

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A leak was discovered in Apollo 11's pressurization system today but a space agency spokesman said it was not expected to delay the start of the lunar landing countdown tonight.

The problem was in Apollo 11's booster rocket. Technicians were ordered to climb into the rocket's huge fuel tanks to correct it.

A space agency spokesman reported that the leak was expected to prove minor and easily corrected, but he acknowledged, "It's the one matter of concern."

The countdown for next Wednesday's launch of Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. EDT and the spokesman said, "We're still planning to start the countdown on time."

It was the first significant problem reported during the preparations to begin the countdown and a space agency spokesman said, "it's unusual." Earlier today, the agency said everything was in good shape.

Another in the series on Step-by-Step to the Moon and a report on the death of the space monkey Bonny on Page 5. Today's Moon article details eight years of planning, testing and tragedy.

While the rocket troubleshooting was underway, Armstrong, Collins and Aldrin sharpened their flying skills in moonship trainers.

In a final pre-countdown staff meeting Wednesday night, Launch Director Rocco A. Petrone told launch crewmen: "This is the big one we've been working on for eight or nine years. We're going into it with a good posture. Let's keep everything moving."

The countdown includes 93 hours of work and 40 hours, 32 minutes of rest periods. These rest intervals could be used to recoup lost time if the nelium leak caused a countdown delay.

Takeoff time for the world's greatest space adventure — putting men on the moon—is 9:32 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

With time getting shorter, the astronauts kept up their training grind in a building six miles from the launch pad where they have been practicing almost daily in recent weeks in spacecraft simulators. They get their last day off on Sunday.

Armstrong and Aldrin worked until late Wednesday afternoon in a mock-up of the lunar landing vehicle, practicing donning the bulky backpacks they will use to breathe on the moon, and other operations of the epic first steps onto the lunar surface. Armstrong will be the first to climb down the ladder from the spacecraft.

Collins worked simultaneously in a command ship simulator, practicing the duties of flying alone in orbit around the moon, waiting to rendezvous with his teammates when their job is done.

Today's work schedule assigned all three crewmen to the command ship simulator to rehearse the tricky procedures of firing themselves out of earth orbit toward the moon in the fist hours of their eight-day mission.

$300,000 Fire Charged to Youth

WEST COXSACKIE

A 15 year-old state youth parole violator was in custody today accused of setting a fire that destroyed an automobile agency building, seven new cars and equipment valued at upwards of $300,000.

The boy, whose name is withheld because of his age, reportedly was seen running down a street from the direction of the early morning fire which swept through the Jackson and Boome, Inc., automobile agency and garage at 273 Mansion Street in this Greene County community.

Patrolman John Brenzel of the local police department was on duty shortly before 12:30 a. m. when he went to investigate a fire reported at the agency. He found flames sweeping through the brick one-story structure and firemen were summoned.

West Coxsackie fire units sped to the scene and on arrival they saw the fire raging in the building. Through mutual aid, help was dispatched from fire companies in Catskill and Ravena.

The boy was picked up at his home by local police and state troopers from the Leeds substation. He was in bed when authorities took him in custody and accused him of setting the fire while in the act of burglarizing the auto agency.

Sgt. F. W. Hilfrank of the State Police said the juvenile was on parole at the time. He was charged with third degree burglary and arson. The boy was committed pending an appearance in Greene County Family Court.

Frank Platt of the Greene County Probation Department, confirmed a report the accused boy was on parole out of Albany and was still under the jurisdiction of the State Youth Parole Division for a prior conviction. Parole officers today planned to question the juvenile about the fire and reported break-in.

State Police reported the boy allegedly broke into the building. The exact point where entry was made was not definitely determined because after the fire was quelled the structure was a complete loss along with its contents.

Burned in the blaze were seven new automobiles and a tow truck. Also lost in the fire were thousands of dollars worth of expensive tools, automobile accessories and other items.

The property is owned by George Whitmore of this village. A relative of his said she had been told that the boy accused of the fire entered the establishment apparently looking for money, and later allegedly spilled gasoline around and started the fire that swept the structure.

Scores of area residents were attracted by the fire apparatus passing their homes, and a large crowd of spectators watched the firefighters as they fought the flames for hours.

Two local fire units remained at the scene until after 9 a. m. and BCI Investigator E. P. O'Brien and Troopers Patrick Madigan, C. L. Cross and N. J. Pazin of the Leeds State Police.

Mother, Six Children Homeless As Fire Damages City Residence

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON

Neighbors and relatives offered temporary shelter to a mother and six children early today after they were made homeless by fire that extensively damaged the upper part of their residence at 274 Linderman Avenue at Becket Street.

A fireman was overcome by smoke and injured while assisting at the scene of the early morning blaze. He was taken to Kingston Hospital and after treatment he returned to his assignment.

Seven pieces of apparatus responded to the alarm which was sounded at 2:40 a.m. after a woman telephoned Central Station and reported fire in the home of Mrs. Irene Sickler. Firemen responded to the call in command of Chief James M. Brett and Deputy Chief Glyn Southard, who commanded the operations as firefighters battled the stubborn flames that burned through the roof.

Upon arrival of firemen, they discovered flames and smoke belching from windows of the bedrooms in the front of the frame house owned by Mrs. Sickler.

Officials learned that the woman and six children—Gerald, Irene, Gary, Terry, Sandra and Dareen — had evacuated their home. They were scantily clothed. While firemen were fighting the flames, neighbors and relatives offered shelter for the family.

According to fire officials, the blaze apparently originated in the bedroom occupied by Terry and Dareen. The origin of the fire was not immediately determined.

The family apparently was asleep when awakened by smoke and crackling of flames. They hurriedly prepared to flee to the streets as smoke billowed through the hallways. The evacuation of the residence was without incident.

Firemen used two 1½-inch hoselines from Engine 2 as they fought the flames.

Frank Purcell, of Engine 2 was treated at the scene for smoke inhalation and lacerations of the right hand he suffered while assisting other firemen to quell the flames.

Fire officials reported the blaze gutted the bedroom and spread into a hallway, and then extended vertically up through the attic and roof. Intense heat and dense smoke hampered firemen.

Two holes were chopped in the roof to release the smoke and heat, fire officials said. Heavy damage was reported to the upper rooms and halls and considerable damage by water resulted to the first floor rooms and contents.

Officials reported the last piece of fire apparatus reported back in service at 6:10 a. m. Fire officers are planning to return to the house in an effort to determine the cause of the blaze.

Dog Ordinance Hearing Set

Rhinebeck Town Follows Village Lead

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK — The Town of Rhinebeck is following suit of the Village and has scheduled a dog ordinance hearing for July 28.

The village adopted its ordinance Tuesday. The town's proposed ordinance is substantially the same. Separate ordinances were necessary by law, but the same dog warden will enforce both. William Allen recommended listening to what the people had to say at the heading and then changing the ordinance if it was thought necessary. Supervisor Rowland Sharpe said he felt the village was discourteous to go ahead without any notification and pass the ordinance.

Discussion was held on purchase of the Harry Markowitz property, consisting of 12 acres, in an effort to straighten out Primrose Hill Road where a school bus accident took place last year.

Two separate parcels, one free and one for $500, would be included. It was undecided as to whether the county or the town would have to build and maintain the road, so the matter was tabled until the highway superintendent could act.

The corner was termed "Dead Man's Curve" and "a dangerous situation" by two members of the board.

Debate was held on whether to have voting machines inspected before every election at a cost of $35. It was decided, based upon evidence of no major problems in the past, that the money could be better spent elsewhere.

A sarcastic comment by a Democratic member of the audience was, "Why not just move Row A down one notch; the machines will last another 50 years," referring to the prevalence of Republicans in town politics.

Supervisor Sharpe told the gathering some anecdotes of his recent journey to the state supervisor's meet in Olean. He thanked the board for the opportunity to attend, stating, "I got much out of it, especially the informal sessions with other supervisors. It made me thankful for the Town of Rhinebeck."

Scharpe said he would recommend the trip as educational to other Dutchess County supervisors at an upcoming meeting of the group. He said only two persons, including himself, were in evidence from Dutchess County. The other was County Executive David Schoentag.

Milan Councilman Seeks Supervisor Nod

MILAN — Richard Laibach, councilman in the Town of Milan, has tossed his hat into the ring for the Democratic nomination for town supervisor.

Supervisor Thomas Odak, who has held the posititon for 20 years, is seeking a chair on the County Board of Representatives and has already received Democratic and Conservative endorsement.

Laibach was elected councilman in 1967 and has served as deputy supervisor and chairman of the town ordinance committee.

He has represented the town at various functions and seminars for town officials around the state and is well versed in the processes of town government.

Laibach's background includes a degree at City College of New York in 1949 and graduate work at Marist College. He is a representative for Blue Cross in contract work. He is also a licensed real estate and insurance salesman.

Local organizations with which he is affiliated are the Milan Fire Department, Milan Community Association, Elizaville Game Club, Neigbors Gun Club, Red Hook - Rhinebeck Lodge, Little League, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts. He is a Marine veteran of the Korean Conflict.

U. S., State Move on DDT Limits

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI) — Federal and state lawmakers moved on two fronts Wednesday, here and in Washington, to limit the use of DDT and other controversial pesticides.

Dr. J. Henry Wills, executive secretary of the State Health Department's pesticide control board, told a legislative hearing the sale of DDT should be banned in the state by 1971, except in cases of health emergencies. In Washington, Rep. Bertram L. Podell, D-N. Y., urged a temporary national ban on the manufacture, shipment and use of the chemical.

Wills, who spoke before the Assembly's environmental health subcommittee, was joined by Dr. James Grace, director of Roswell Park Memorial Institute who also criticized the use of hydrocarbons, of which DDT is a member.

Grace said that 11 hydrocarbons had produced cancerous tumors in laboratory experiments.

"If we find that these chemicals create problems in mice or lower forms of life, then we must be extremely careful on how we gamble on their use in our environment," he said.

While noting that it is not known if DDT will produce cancer in humans, Grace said, "If it produces cancer in animals, that's good enough for me. I don't want it around."

Podell, who introduced a bill to prohibit interstate shipment of DDT, made the request in letters to the heads of the Department of Agriculture, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Food and Drug Administration.

He asked the ban be imposed "until the inevitable conclusive evidence is in" and in the interest of public health and national safety.

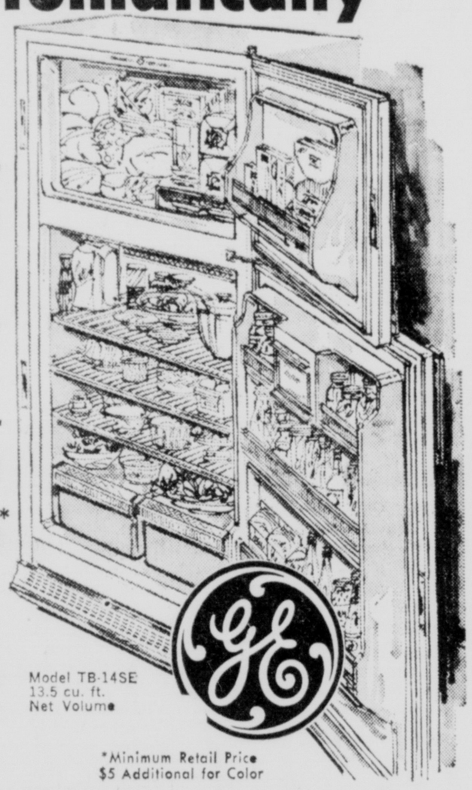

"Several species of wildlife face extinction because of this long lasting poison, among them the peregrine and American eagle," Podell wrote.

"Cumulative evidence has delivered a damning indictment of the continuing use of some nard pesticides. Most specifically, the accusing finger points to DDT."

Michigan, Arizona, the New York City Park Department have banned DDT and California is banning it from homes, gardens, and in dust form on farms, Podell said.

He said other pesticide alternatives were easily available and "a ban on DDT use would harm no one and aid many."

Fish Seeks Education Program On Abuse of Dangerous Drugs

KINGSTON — Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., has requested the U. S. Surgeon General to empanel a special commission on the effects of marijuana on humans, similar to the commission on tobacco, whose report had such far reaching effect on the dangers of cigarette smoking.

The content of the letter to the surgeon general was disclosed by Congressman Fish in testimony before the Select Subcommittee on Education, of the House Committee on Education and Labor in hearings on the Drug Abuse Education Act of 1969.

Congressman Fish testified before the subcommittee in support of the Drug Abuse Act, which he co-sponsored, stating that he had called upon the surgeon general to create a blue-ribbon commission to collect and evaluate research information on the effects of marijuana on humans. He pointed out that the need for authoritative judgment on the effects of marijuana was important, both to parents and children, law enforcement officials and legislators.

"This commission could authoritatively deal with the question of its harm to humans, or recommend legislation and public action that might be necessary to complete research on this question, so that such an authoritative and definitive answer can be given," Congressman Fish said.

The Select Subcommittee was taking evidence on the Drug Abuse Act of 1969, which would authorize federal funds to help educators, law enforcement officials receive instruction on drug education. The bill would also provide funds to school districts and local communities with which to sponsor drug abuse seminars for parents and others in the community.

"This bill provides for comprehensive programs to educate our society on the abuse of dangerous drugs." Congressman Fish said in support of the Act, "We can no longer remain idle in this area."

Esopus Board Gives Facts

PORT EWEN — Despite reports to the contrary being circulated throughout the Town of Esopus, the cost of zoning to the township whether accepted or rejected is $4,248.

Esopus Supervisor George H. Freer made this announcement at the Wednesday night session of the Town Board. The town is currently undergoing a series of informational meetings on the proposed zoning ordinance. The supervisor said that he wished to scotch the rumors about huge costs of zoning.

With federal and state reimbursements, the actual cost to the township is $4,248 which is roughly one-sixth of the total cost.

Chester DuMond Jr., chairman of the Town Planning Board reported on the two informational meetings. He said another is scheduled for sometime in August when changes have been made in accordance with recommendations heard at the earlier sessions.

It was reported that enforcement procedures on the Junk Car Ordinance had been started and notice was given that those in violation can look forward to having the junk cars towed away and the costs levied on the next tax bills.

Councilman Oscar Lambert reported that he had attended a course on landfill operation at Cornell University recently and explained some of the details of the course.

The matter of replacement of a traffic signal used by Rifton Fire Department at the intersection of Route 213 and Maple Street is still unsettled. The State Transportation Department had given the town until June 20 to changeover and replace the flashing light to conform with state regulations. The latest order for removal from the Department of Traffic Safety set a dealline of July 1, which has already passed. Further correspondence is being exchanged on the matter.

The board approved the Port Ewen Water Board's recommendation to hire Raymond R. Webster of Kingston at the water plant on the River Road.

Agreement Hoped for in Rhinebeck

RHINEBECK — "We are hopeful that some agreement be reached prior to Monday night," said Rhinebeck Board of Education President Robert Asher Wednesday evening.

He was referring to the salary impasse with the Rhinebeck Teachers' Association. The board meets Monday evening, and would like to set a date for a new submission of the once defeated school budget to the voters. "It would be ideal if we could reach some agreement with the teachers prior to setting a date for a new vote," said Asher. He mentioned the possibility of a July 31 date.

District Superintendent Ralph Steeves has submitted his recommendations on the PERB fact finder's report. The Board did not wholeheartedly agree with the statement released this week by Albert Dresdner, fact finder for the State Public Employment Relations Board.

"As chief officer of the district, he was bound to try to bring the factions together with recommendations and compromise," said Asher of Steeves.

The report asked for a basic pay raise of $400, from a starting $6,450 to $6,850. In addition, percentage boosts of four per cent for length of service; $600 educational increase; longevity step changes at 20, 25, and 30 years from five to 7½ per cent increases; and $200 for a master's degree.

The other three issues included in the impasse were resolved, length of day for elementary teachers; free time for elementary teachers; and grievence procedures.

Representatives from each party would be elected in the case of grievances, and an impartial third party would be elected for arbitration in case no agreements could be reached.

Elementary teachers will receive at least 200 minutes free class time per week for preparation, if administratively feasible.

And the length of the school day is not to exceed 7½ working hours, with exceptions for conferences, meetings, and other criteria. The length of the student day is also being scrutinized.

Committee Critical of Army Over That New Sheridan Tank

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It took the Army 10 years and at least $1.2 billion to develop the Sheridan tank, a light-armored reconnaissance-assault vehicle designed to carry the Shillelagh guided missile into battle.

The new vehicle, the Army promised, would fire faster and more accurately than any tank in existence.

After a two-year investigation and a series of hearings—some secret—a special House Armed Services subcommittee accused the Army Wednesday of deceiving Congress on the need for a tank modernization effort built around the Sheridan and of then filing misleading reports" on the program's progress.

The four-man subcommittee headed by Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., also concluded the vehicles still were unfit for combat and recommended that no more be sent to Vietnam until 'all major defects" had been eliminated.

In its 39-page report the subcommittee noted the Army claimed in 1959 that it needed a tank capable of firing guided missiles 'at the earliest possible date" to counter a threat posed by purportedly superior Soviet armored vehicles.

After the Sheridan program was approved, continued the report, the Army first failed to disclose problems that cropped up, then demonstrated unwarranted overconfidence" in the weapon's effectiveness, and finally ordered mass production of the Sheridan and its components even though technicians warned some difficulties remained unsolved.

'The preponderance of evidence assembled by the subcommittee... raises serious doubts as to the immediacy of any threat which would justify the development of the Sheridan-Shillelagh system on a crash basis," the report said.

Home Ransacked

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Peter Lawford's apartment was ransacked this week while he was vacationing in Europe. Sheriff's deputies said a ladder was used to enter the second-floor apartment between 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and 11:30 a.m. Wednesday. Another apartment in the building also was broken into. Lawford, former husband of Patricia Kennedy Lawford, sister of the late President John F. Kennedy, is not due home until September.

PERMANENT NOW — Dr. S. I. Hayakawa (L) shakes hands with California Governor Ronald Reagan after he was appointed permanent President of San Francisco State College by the State College Board of Trustees. Hayakawa, who has been Acting President of the college, was named permanent head despite some faculty opposition to his hard line policies toward campus militants. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

On Integration

Maddox to Justice Officials: Phooey

ATLANTA (UPI)—Standing red-faced before television cameras, Gov. Lester Maddox angrily told the Justice Department what it could do with its suggestion for immediate and complete integration of Georgia's public schools.

"So far as I'm concerned, they can take their ultimatum and ram it in their satchels—or suitcases if they want to, and phooey on the whole crowd," Maddox said.

The governor said it would be better to close the schools than to submit to the "Communist demands" of the Justice Department.

"If necessary, we should close our schools for a month or a year or two years. It would be better to do that and have free children than slave children," said Maddox who ran for president a year ago.

The Justice Department suggestion that all Georgia's school districts end racial segregation swiftly and voluntarily was the first such edict to involve an entire state. The Nixon administration Wednesday gave the Georgia state Board of Education 15 days to submit an acceptable plan or face "remedies from the United States District Court."

A letter from Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerris Leonard, chief of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, to state School Superintendent Jack Nix placed the onus of the "suggestion" squarely on the back of the state Board of Education.

"Our investigation reveals that the state Board of Education has broad authority to regulate the public schools and has, in fact, adopted rules, regulations, policies and standards with respect to most phases of school administration," the letter said.

Leonard added that the board had failed to "meet its 14th Amendment obligations" and has acted in a "manner which affirmatively perpetuates the unconstitutional dual (school) system."

Leonard said Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has ruled the complaints of several Georgia Negro parents" meritorious.

"Their children are being deprived of the equal protection of the laws on account of their race, because the public schools continue to be operated on a dual, racially segregated basis, and because the educational opportunities available in the Negro schools are inferior to those available in the schools traditionally maintained for white students," he said.

Maddox urged Nix and the state Board of Education to "proceed as they have been proceeding in the past."

Nix had said earlier he knew of no federal law allowing a state board to determine policy for local school districts. He added that under state law the board can only formulate general educational policies for the local districts.

16 to 2 Vote

Hayakawa Advances

LOS ANGELES (AP) — S.I. Hayakawa has advanced from temporary to permanent president of troubled San Francisco State College with blessings from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Hayakawa, a jaunty, soft-voiced language expert, left open the possibility that he might seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate next year.

Republican Reagan said of the 62-year-old campus leader: "He is an example throughout the country of the relatively small group that have stood firm" in college disorders.

Reagan and other state college trustees voted 16-2 Wednesday to name Hayakawa permanent San Francisco State president.

As acting president since last fall, Hayakawa called in hundreds of police to keep the campus open through four months of violence, bombings, charges of police brutality and student vandalism.

He promised Wednesday to work "quietly" to improve the campus, relatively peaceful since strikes by students and faculty ended earlier this year.

Hayakawa's critics have called him a poseur and seeker of political office.

The strike involved student demands for a black studies department and additional programs for minority group students.

Battle of the Surtax:

Psychological, Political Fronts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The battle between President Nixon and Senate Democrats over the income tax surcharge is being fought on two fronts—psychological and political.

Either way, the stakes are far higher than the $7.6 billion involved.

Nixon turned up the pressure late Wednesday by calling his top economic advisers to an emergency meeting to discuss the economic impact of Senate delay in extension of the surtax.

The President made it plain he thinks any hesitation will fan the fires of inflation and that he will blame the Democrats for any resulting rise in the cost of living.

Sen. Fred R. Harris, Democratic national chairman and a member of the Senate Finance Committee, hit back by charging Nixon wants to "tax in haste and reform at leisure."

Harris said a proposal to add $1.2 billion a year to the tax bills of the rich was the "bare minimum" reform Democrats would insist upon as the price for extension of the surtax.

Nixon wants prompt expansion of the tax to prove the government means business in its fight against inflation.

Administration officials, including Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, say fast action also is needed by the Senate to combat an "inflationary psychology" which causes businessmen and others to buy now to avoid the next round of price increases.

Kennedy argues that if the public becomes convinced that inflation can be contained, individuals will begin to save more of their money, thus helping to cool the economy.

But Senate Finance Chairman Russell Long, D-La., says his committee will not act on the House-passed surtax bill until it completes hearings on overall tax reform.

Harris said he would try to attach to the surtax bill his "minimum income tax" plan, which would require the rich to pay taxes on at least half of their total income regardless of exemptions and deductions. He said present loopholes permitted 21 persons with income of more than $1 million to escape taxation in 1967.

Harris hinted that if they are blocked on their tax reform efforts, the Democrats might agree to extend the surtax for a short period, possibly three months.

Such a strategy might force the Republican President to spend much of his first year in office fighting to raise taxes, a politically unattractive stance.

It also could permit the Democrats to keep a hold on the surtax for use as a lever in other dealings with the White

Distaffer on High Court—Some Possibles

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon may want to name a woman to the Supreme Court. But finding a relatively young Republican woman with a legal background and few family responsibilities may be another matter.

But here are some possibilities:

—Mary Gardiner Jones, 48, member of the Federal Trade Commission, a lawyer and only Republican woman who is a member of a regulatory commission. She is single.

—Rep. Margaret M. Heckler, R-Mass., 38, two-term congresswoman and a lawyer. She is married and the mother of three.

But if Nixon does appoint a woman, there is nothing that reuqires him to name a Republican (or a lawyer, for that matter). Waiving those two considerations the list gets much longer.

Here are some prominent Democratic women lawyers:

—U.S. Circuit Court Judge Shirley M. Hufstedler, 42, Los Angeles, the second woman ever to serve on a Court of Appeals.

—Virginia Mae Brown, 45, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission and former West Virginia public service commissioner.

—Reps. Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii, and Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich. Mrs. Mink is the mother of one daughter. Mrs. Griffiths is serving her eighth term.

—Patricia R. Harris, 44, former ambassador to Luxembourg and former dean of the Howard University Law School.

There are others—U.S. District Court Judge Constance Baker Motley, 47, Negro, married, mother of one son and former president of Manhattan Borough; Arizona Supreme Court Justice Lorna E. Lockwood, member of a noted legal family in that state; California District Court of Appeals Judge Mildred L. Lillie.

The flap started Tuesday when Mrs. Heckler and three colleagues, Reps. Charlotte T. Reid, R-Ill., former singer, Florence P. Dwyer, R-N.J., former businesswoman, and Katherine May, R-Wash., former teacher, went to the White House.

They complained to Nixon that he had not appointed enough women to high posts in his administration. They came away smiling and said he had told them he wanted to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court.

Actually, Nixon may not have too much trouble in coming up with a name. Asst. GOP National Chairman Elly Peterson said she had two card files full of names of "womandoers"—and she intends to start thumbing through them right away.

Drastic Barber Ideas Snipped

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Some rather drastic innovations in the barbering business were quickly snipped Wednesday by Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo when he gave negative answers to a Long Island lawyer whose client wanted to open a new kind of hair salon.

The unidentified lawyer said his client wanted to have female barbers dressed in see-through uniforms and serve cocktails while patrons sat in their chair having their locks shorn.

The secretary of state issued "no" responses to both requests. His office issues licences to barbers and hairdressers.

"A barber shop," he said, "lawfully is established for the purpose of providing a location where the practice of barbering may be conducted and not for the purpose of presenting a peep show."

On the practice of serving liquor, Lomenzo said consumption of alcohol during business hours by either barber or patron would result in a reckless endangerment of the public and "can not be permitted."

Step-by-Step to the Moon . . . No. 4

Lunar Flight Program Grew From a 1960 Dream

EDITORS NOTE: From a dream" to a man on the moon in nine years. This is the fourth of five articles telling the story of step-by-step to the moon.

By EDWARD K. DELONG

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The Apollo moonflight program grew from a 1960 "dream" through eight years of planning and testing capped by tragedy and a major overhaul, to make its manned debut in space.

It emerged the most complicated—but perfect—mating of man and machine that human minds and hands had ever accomplished.

Astronauts Walter M. Schirra, Donn F. Eisele and R. Walter Cunningham dropped back to earth in Apollo 7 Oct. 22, 1968, after giving the moon flight command ship an 11-day maiden test in earth orbit. They brought with them a 101 per cent record of success.

To engineers who had lived through the problems of the pathfinding Mercury and Gemini flights, Apollo spacecraft chief George M. Low said later, the most fantastic thing about the first Apollo mission was that there were really no spacecraft system problems."

A Daring Voyage

Sure even before Apollo 7 that the moonship was a winner, Low fought for clearance to send the second Apollo on a daring voyage to orbit the moon. With the success of Apollo 7, he won.

By flying Apollo 8 in lunar orbit, Low and other officials reasoned, it would be possible to test the Apollo command ship on the exact type of mission for which it was built. It would also avoid a delay caused by development problems with the moon landing craft, being readied for its maiden test with men in earth orbit.

For five months, flight planners and astronauts Frank Borman, James A. Lovell and William A. Anders struggled to prepare for the moon orbit mission. And on Christmas Eve, circling 69 miles above the moon, Borman reported:

"The moon is a different thing to each one of us. I know my own impression is that it is a vast, lonely, forbidding expanse of nothing. It looks like clouds of pumice stone. It certainly would not appear to be a very inviting place to live or work."

Apollo 8 returned to earth with more than 100 per cent success to its credit.

Apollo 8 also was the first manned flight launched by the 7.5 million pound thrust Saturn 5 rocket, which had only two unmanned flights behind it—one successful and one partially successful—before the mission.

Next came the flight of Apollo 9, testing in earth orbit the entire machine designed to put two men on the moon and proving with men aboard for the first time the capabilities of the Apollo moon landing craft.

Launched March 3, 1969, astronauts James A. McDivitt, David R. Scott and Russell L. 'Rusty" Schweickart rode their command ship nicknamed "Gumdrop" into a perfect orbit. For more than three days they spun round the globe, locked nose-to-nose with the landing craft they called Spider" because of its shape, in a make-believe voyage to the moon.

Orbital Spacewalk

Schweickart, overcoming a bout of nausea, spacewalked outside the landing craft the fourth day to test the backpack moonwalkers must wear to provide themselves oxygen. It was the only orbital spacewalk planned for Apollo.

And on the fifth day of the 11-day mission, Schweickart and McDivitt separated the spidery lander from the command ship and flew 100 miles away. Then they returned to Scott and the command ship for a pin-point rendezvous.

That flight, too, ended with more than the desired perfection of performance. The only problems that marred it and the first two Apollos were with the men themselves—nausea and colds.

Apollo 10 combined the complexities of Apollo 8 and Apollo 9 to fly within less than nine miles of the moon and do every part of the landing mission except the final touchdown itself.

While astronaut John Young orbited 69 miles above the moon in his 'Charlie Brown" command ship, pilots Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan flew their Snoopy" moon lander through two close passes over the first Apollo landing site.

Bulls-Eye Landing

They refined lunar navigation techniques so Apollo 11 could perform a bulls-eye landing. And they proved that with proper rest before the flight the men of Apollo could hold up as well as the machines.

With just four manned missions, Apollo had proved itself ready to take on the moon. How?

Apollo was born on a space agency drawing board in 1960 as a scheme to fly men around the earth for up to 14 days and ultimately to send them nonstop around the back of the moon. It was, one congressman said at the time, a designer's dream."

Then President Kennedy aimed the nation's sights on a moon landing before 1970, and Apollo turned from the circumlunar 'dream" to the landing effort. No venture outside wartime has required so great a mobilization of a nation's effort.

More than 300,000 Americans, working for 20,000 corporations all over the nation, took part in the $23.9 billion effort. Just one key decision alone—settling on the method of going to the moon—required more than a million man-hours of technical study.

There were three possible ways of carrying off the flight—a direct earth-to-moon trip with a giant rocket ship; a rendezvous between a fuel tanker and the spaceship in earth orbit before heading out to the lunar surface and back; or the development of a mothership that could fly to moon orbit, drop a ferry to the lunar surface, rendezvous with the ferry after its surface stay and come back to earth.

In the first two cases the ship that landed would have been forced to set down on the moon with enough fuel to take off and fly all the way back home. It would have been said spacecraft designer Caldwell Johnson, like trying to land the Washington monument on the moon."

Favor Landing Gerry

In 1962 the space agency abandoned this towering one-piece spacecraft approach in favor of the last alternative—the mothership and its landing ferry. The mission plan was called LOR," for lunar orbit rendezvous.

By the end of Gemini, in late 1966, the mothership was almost ready for its maiden flight. Launch pads for the Saturn 5 were almost completed at Cape Kennedy. The rocket itself was almost ready for unmanned testing. Completion of the landing craft was in sight.

Officials hoped for a moon landing by the spring of 1968.

Then tragedy struck. Apollo 1 astronauts Virgil I. "Gus" Grissom, Edward H. White and Roger B. Chaffee, practicing the countdown for a flight debut expected Feb. 21, 1967, burned to death in a blaze that swept their spacecraft the night of Friday, Jan. 27, 1967.

Sloppy" Work

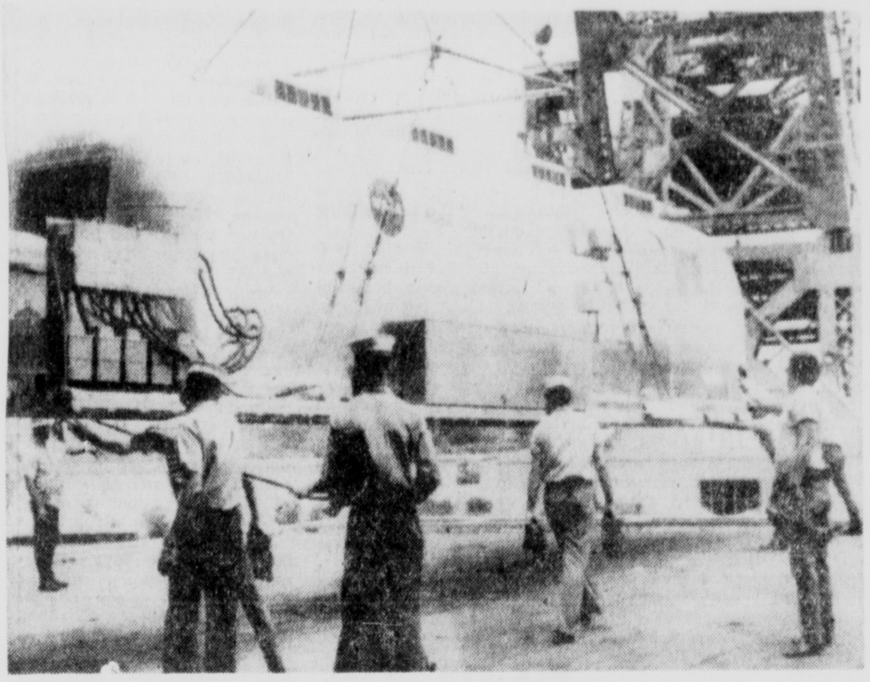

Investigating teams pinned the probable cause of the flash fire on an electrical short circuit in the command ship. They found repeated examples of sloppy" workmanship and material selection.

The result was an almost complete rebuilding of Apollo. Designs were re-evaluated, and fireproof materials never before available were developed. A new quick-opening hatch was put on the moonship.

Perhaps more important, experience from the latter Gemini flights—gathered to late for incorporation in the original Apollo design—was put to use in improving the moonship, its lander and its rocket.

The fire delayed the first Apollo manned flight 19 months. But, said Low, the redesign improvements that went into Apollo after the fire and the close attention to detail that the fire prompted made possible the perfection Apollo displayed when it did finally fly.

NEXT: The Lunar Landing

QUARANTINE FACILITY — The mobile Quarantine Facility for the Apollo 11 astronauts is loaded onto the USS Hornet, prime recovery vessel for the mission. Extensive preparations — including cancellation of a dinner with President Nixon — have been made to assure the astronauts' pre-flight health, and to prevent any contamination of the earth by possible organisms picked up on the moon. Animal Shelter Turned Into an Abandoned Zoo

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Animal Welfare League thinks little of taking in abandoned a little too beastly.

'I'm supposed to be running an animal shelter," League Director Allen Glisch says. No one said anything about a zoo."

Two African lions, a mountain lion, a leopard, a black bear and a hyena—all grouchy with hunger—were brought in Wednesday after state police investigated a flatbed truck abandoned on the Tri-State Tollway.

The truck, which carried circus-type cages in which the animals lunged and paced, was first noticed by police Tuesday morning near the O'Hare Airport oasis on the tollway. Its license plates were registered to a fairgrounds near Troy, Ala.

A service station attendant told police the driver had gone for a part to repair a broken axle. By nightfall Tuesday, police asked the attendant to give the animals some water.

How?" he asked.

Cautiously," they told him.

Police, seeking the driver and owner, Wednesday summoned a tow truck and pulled the flatbed about 10 miles. Then two tires went flat on the flatbed. The trip continued after the tires were changed, causing traffic jams on the Eisenhower and Dan Ryan expressways as motorists gawked at the crippled circus wagon.

Tow truck and flatbed finally made it to the animal league, where the animals were fed and pronounced physically fit.

Trace Death Of Bonny To Heart

HONOLULU (UPI)—A preliminary autopsy has revealed that Bonny the space monkey probably died of heart failure resulting from a combination of weightlessness, immobility and a chilly space capsule.

The 14-pound pigtail monkey died Tuesday after he was brought back to earth in the ninth day of a planned 30-day orbiting mission to determine the physical effects of a long voyage in space.

The preliminary autopsy results announced Wednesday said Bonny suffered "minor injury to internal organs, probably due to re-entry forces."

However, "all organ systems indicated full function until the time of death. Death was probably due to cooling of the animal and consequent heart failure," the report said.

"Lack of heat due to immobilization, zero G (gravity) forces and a cool capsule (68-70 degrees) are felt to be the major contributions to the demise of the animal."

The autopsy was begun Tuesday afternoon at Hickam Air Force Base, where the monkey had been scheduled originally to undergo two weeks of tests had the mission been completed as planned.

The remains of the animal were being sent to a number of mainland universities for further study. A final announcement on the findings will be made by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration when the studies are completed.

Muskie Concedes

Following a six-month speaking tour of the country to build a base for his own possible campaign for the Democratic nomination, Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine conceded to Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Muskie had come out of the 1968 campaign with considerable acclaim, as the candidate for Vice President. He undertook this nationwide tour to test whether there was enough substance to his popularity to make a bid for the top spot. He sadly concluded that, right now, the momentum is all Kennedy's way.

However, Muskie may yet have his chance if he remains interested in the 1972 nomination. For Kennedy says it is entirely too soon to make any calculation about what is going to happen in three years from now. He frankly admits that events—particularly a settlement in Vietnam—could make President Nixon unbeatable. That is a major reason why Kennedy supporters are saying Kennedy has time on his side and should wait until 1976, when he would be running against a candidate other than the White House incumbent. But the Kennedy image also could tarnish before 1976, as it has already in some ways.

Nixon himself showed that one defeat for the Presidency does not necessarily rule a man out if he will be an aggressive party leader. Muskie might have that in mind if he continues his canvass of the possibilities for the nomination in 1972, should Kennedy wait for a later try.

Tourists of Tragedy

The same thing happens after every disaster.

First comes the storm or the fire or the explosion or whatever. Then come the curiosity-seekers, the morbid, the tourists of tragedy.

It happened again after the Lake Erie-brewed storm that devastated northern Ohio on July 4. In Cleveland, the suburb of Lakewood was the area hardest hit by both forces—Mother Nature and this lamentable aspect of human nature.

Hardly had the shocked city begun the immense task of assessing its damage and cleaning up than the gawkers began streaming in, jamming the already tree-blocked streets with their automobiles (some even bearing out-of-state plates), getting in the way of crews attempting to remove fallen trees and wires and utility company workers laboring to restore services.

It got so bad that one exasperated resident put a sign on a pile of tree limbs, smashed picnic tables and other litter:

"Genuine Lakewood Storm Souvenirs for Sale."

Other signs appeared saying, "Tourists Go Home."

The strange thing is that when a disaster is actually in progress it seems to bring out the best in most people. There was incident after incident of people risking their own safety to help others during the height of this storm. It is in the aftermath that we revert to type.

There is nothing vicious about this curious type of behavior. It is merely stupid.

And it happens every time.

Revision to Stalinism

Because the Nixon Administration builds its plans for a reduction in world tensions on working with the Soviet Union to limit armaments and to settle differences in such explosive areas as the Middle East and Far East, its successes will depend on the men who now rule the Soviet empire. That is why the report of Anatole Shub, expelled by the Soviet authorities after two years as Moscow correspondent of The Washington Post, is of immediate interest.

For Shub says that the Kremlin bosses as well as the security police "have turned increasingly to repression and reaction, xenophobia and mystification." In short, they have rejected reform and cast their rule in a Stalinist mold. Intelligent Russians look for a violent explosion once the "unemasculated generation born after Stalin's death reaches manhood" Shub says, recalling, that such explosions have been frequent in Russian history and have often brought only tragedy.

This is not an optimistic atmosphere in which to work out world problems. A revision to Stalinism can only mean intensification of the cold war, not help in reducing world tensions, no matter how many smiles are passed around at Soviet receptions.

Senator Jacob K. Javits is introducing legislation to establish a universal health insurance system for all Americans. It would be financed by employe-employer contributions. If Social Security is a criterion, this would pile up another exorbitant tax.

There are now 22,000 foundations, two-thirds of which have assets of less than $200,000, or annual grants totaling under $10,000. Most are family foundations run by the donor, his children or the family lawyer. Fortune magazine reports American foundations control $20.5 billions and disburse $1.5 billion annually. They form a rich pool of untaxed funds.

U.S. Troop Withdrawal Seen As Appeasement, Defeat

WASHINGTON — As small contingents of American troops begin to arrive home from Vietnam, there is naturally rejoicing. But it would be a mistake to interpret the "withdrawal" as a sign that peace is really coming and that America's military involvement in Southeast Asia is about to end.

The sad truth is that the United States government, in its desire to make an impression before the world of being conciliatory, has rejected military advice and, in effect, has lost the war.

In testimony given to a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee on April 16, which has just been released, the Air Force chief of staff, General John P. McConnell, said that between the time the bombing was halted by President Johnson on Oct. 31, 1968, and April 1969, North Vietnam had rebuilt all the bridges, highways and trans-shipment points which previously were destroyed by U.S. planes. General McConnell added:

"Practically everything in North Vietnam has been rebuilt . . . everything is operating up there now very nearly as if it had not been even touched. Supplies now enter North Vietnam without any difficulty and are brought right down to the demilitarized zone without any difficulty, and the tonnages are extremely high. From there the supplies go into Laos."

For the last few days, there have been reports from Vietnam that a lull in the fighting was developing and that the war was being de-escalated by North Vietnam in response to the pull-out of some American troops. But the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have just shelled 27 towns and allied bases in a single night, and American military officials say that the Communists are being reinforced for the "third phase" of their summer offensive to be begun in coming weeks.

President Thieu of South Vietnam goes along publicly with the idea of a gradual withdrawal of American troops because he knows this is what President Nixon would wish him to say. In his address to the first groups of American troops leaving Vietnam, Thieu declared:

"We fully realize that the primary responsibility in the struggle in Vietnam should be ours — the free Vietnamese."

The big question, however, is whether the South Vietnamese will be able to handle the situation themselves, even with materiel and technical help from the United States.

Senator John Stennis of Mississippi, Democrat, who is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and who has listened to many private briefings on the Vietnam problem, was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers" last Sunday. He said some significant things about the future of the war. Among them were these:

"I don't think the troops the local troops — will be able to take it over very rapidly. My opinion is it will take several years to develop the leadership and get enough men trained to do the job.

"I am afraid we are not going to be able to fully pull out of Vietnam, but that doesn't mean we have to go on fighting forever."

The Senator intimated that a situation like that in Korea might develop, where an armistice line was drawn. The South Vietnamese, with the aid of some American troops, would defend only a certain area and would seek support for such a plan from other Asian Nations. He added:

"I think if we pull out we would be in worse trouble in five years somewhere else over there. That is my idea. I don't yet favor just pulling out."

There is talk of "alternative plans" — some method of stabilizing the situation so that hopefully the fighting will cease. But there is no indication that North Vietnam will reciprocate. A South Vietnamese representative at the Paris Peace Conference has stated that his government is ready to match any genuine move by the Communists to reduce the level of the fighting, but that "a unilateral de-escalation would get us nowhere."

If the situation is realistically examined, it must be concluded that there is as yet no evidence of a contemplated withdrawal by the Communists. The North Vietnamese are waiting for the United States to bring home practically all of its troops, and it may be anticipated that the South Vietnamese then will face an even bigger war and the prospect of a Communist take-over.

So appeasement such as America is practicing today — in withdrawing troops without any corresponding steps by the enemy — is an example of how a one-sided "de-escalation" becomes synonymous with defeat.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Nothing has mystified Americans more, in recent months, than the explosive battle around the President's proposal to build a modified anti-ballistic missile system called Safeguard. Simply stated, it is a big asparagus patch of nuclear birds designed to take flight and destroy Soviet missiles before they reach the United States.

A Princeton poll has shown that 84 per cent of adult Americans are in favor of such a system. In the United States Senate, Senators J.W. Fulbright and Edward Kennedy are leading a loud publicity campaign against Safeguard. Their arguments run: "It won't work;" "It will cost two billions of dollars;" "It will drive the Russians away from disarmament talks;" "M.I.T. scientists claim that an enemy can knock such a system out of business with one salvo of SS-9 missiles."

Let us take those arguments one at a time. "It won't work." The President and the Joint Chiefs of Staff think it will. The Russians have already built a picket fence of ABMs around their capital city — Moscow. They cannot plan a war against us without assuming that our ABM System will be effective. They believe that their's will.

The cost of Nixon's Safeguard comes to two billions of dollars. It will be spent over a period of five years — $400,000,000 a year. We drop a great deal more than that toward the interest on our national debt. A nation which spends 70 billions a year on weaponry has no right to balk at two billion, especially when it is designed to protect our Minute Man missiles from being destroyed before they are launched.

The most ridiculous argument is that it will drive the Russians away from "disarmament talks." In the first place, the USSR has never agreed to have such talks because they cannot swallow the notion that, if they are permitted to examine our missile sites, our military must be allowed to examine theirs.

Each side knows where the other's missiles are buried in silos. Both have ICBMs aimed — not at cities — but at missile sites. The United States is at a decided disadvantage because it keeps promising that it will never strike the first blow. Thus, our missile system must be oriented to surviving the first clutch of Russian missiles — possibly 500 — of which the majority will have multiple warheads.

In sum, Uncle Sam stands with his arms at his side, chin out, waiting for the first solid punch. Then, if he is able, he will release his Minute Man (if enough are left) to destroy Russian missile sites. The two ABM sites selected so far, one in Montana and one in North Dakota, represent a relatively feeble attempt to catch the incoming missiles and destroy them in the sky.

The U.S. radar warning system will be able to spot the enemy birds 22 minutes before their arrival. They will be coming over the North Pole, if they are ever launced. The President of the United States will have exactly 14 minutes in which to launch the ABMs, or to order the Minute Men to leave their sunken silos and pass the Russian missiles over northern Canada enroute to the Soviet Union.

The best chance for this country, of course, would be to order the ABMs to meet the Russian missiles — or as many of them as possible — and, in sequence, to order the Minute Men out of their silos before destruction by Soviet missiles. Fourteen minutes is a very short time for a man to make up his mind whether to go all the way or risk destruction of his nation.

Three respected scientists from Massachusetts Institute of Technology testified against the ABM Safeguard system. They are Dr. Jerome B. Wiesner, Dr. George W. Rathjens, and Dr. Steven Weinberg. Their argument runs that it will take five years for Nixon to build his missile fence, and it will take the Russians a few months to manufacture a few extra ICBMs with which to destroy our defense system.

They say that the ABM requires radar to guide it, and thus all the Soviet has to do is destroy our ABM radar first, and then come in with their main attack of 500 SS-9s to destroy our missiles and our will to resist. On paper it sounds solid.

Practically, the argument is specious. The ABMs, to be of any value, must be fired at least eight minutes before the enemy missiles arrive. Once they take flight, destruction of their radar eyes will be too late. It will also give the President at least 20 more minutes to assess the Russian intention and to fire everything we have.

I wish our Senators would stop worrrying about offending the Soviet Union. Better to live a day on our feet than a century on our knees...

Drew Pearson Says

U.S. Faces Critical Drought For Lack of Planning, Foresight

WASHINGTON — Along the Atlantic seaboard right now are two illustrations of man's efficiency in achieving the thrills of life and man's inefficiency in not achieving the necessities of life.

At Cape Kennedy, the United States is about to launch the most carefully rehearsed, most expensive, most unnecessary project of this century by which man will reach a piece of drab, radioactive, lava-like real estate hitherto romantic because of distance — the moon.

The launching will succeed because a vast amount of money and the best scientific brains in America over a period of seven years have been lavished on this moon shot. Meanwhile, up the Atlantic coast, the capital which voted the twenty billion dollars to reach the moon is desperately short of the second essential to man's life — water — all because of lack of planning, lack of foresight, and lack of money — the same ingredients which have put the moon shot on the verge of success.

The Potomac River from which the capital of the United States draws its water is gradually drying up. Its upper reaches are so shallow that rocks stick out of the stream bed like the bones of a starving old woman. Drained by communities and real estate development along its banks, the upper Potomac is starving.

Below, as it flows through Washington, the once majestic river has become an open sewer. Two hundred and forty million gallons of human excrement, detergents, wash water and industrial waste are poured daily into the river. The sewage is only partially treated.

Not even fish can live long in this poisonous water. The days when small boys splashed and cavorted off the piers of Alexandria are no more. The bacteria count is 100 times higher than the level considered safe for swimming.

Unnecessary delay

However, none of this had to happen. Twenty-five years ago the Roosevelt administration foresaw the fact that growing Washington would need more water, and the Army Engineers prepared a comprehensive plan for a far-flung system of dams and reservoirs on the Potomac and its tributaries.

Immediately there was an outcray from real estate interests and big farmers whose land would be inundated. The plan was shelved. It was revived under Kennedy, only to be shelved again. This time the conservationists joined the real estate interests.

There was talk of small dams instead of big ones — dams whch would not spoil the river's natural beauty. But nothing was done. There was a lot of talk. A tri-state commission was appointed. Surveys were made. Commissions traveled up and down the river, inspected the Virginia and Maryland tributaries. But nothing happened.

So for lack of planning, lack of action, lack of money, the once full-bosomed, beautiful Potomac has become an emaciated old lady, her bones protruding, smelly, unkempt, unsightly.

And water is short all over the capital of the United States while the same government which has neglected its own front yard reaches for the moon.

A National Problem

The plight of the Potomac is not confined to the capital alone. It illustrates what is happening all over the United States, from New York City where drinking water is still not served in restaurants, to Chicago which is reaching further and further into Lake Michigan for its water.

Gradually at first, but now accelerating rapidly as the population grows, water is becoming a problem. Yet the same ingenuity used in reaching the moon would solve our water problems.

There is an illustration. Russia has reversed the direction of some of its great rivers which flow into the barren Artic where they freeze and are wasted. What a communistic nation can do, presumably a capitalistic nation can do — if it eschews politics.

For less money than it takes to reach the moon, the Missouri River could be diverted westward at around Omaha and made to flow through the parched plains of Nebraska, Kansas and Texas instead of adding its vast volume to the already brimful Mississippi.

What the nation needs, however, is a water pollution czar who can look ahead, make plans, spend money, as the moon-shooters have done. Until that time, the city of Washington will be periodically starved for water, as will other cities of this short-sighted nation.

Nixon's Doctor Reports

Dr. Arnold Hutschnecker, the New York psychiatrist, takes the occasion of an article in Look magazine to discuss President Nixon's mental stability and take a sideswipe at me regarding the inquiry I made of Hutshnecker during last fall's election campaign.

The results of my inquiry of Dr. Hutschnecker were not published during the campaign but came out later during a question-and-answer period at the National Press Club.

Dr. Hutschnecker makes himself out to be a very tight-lipped psychiatrist. But since he has raised the issue, he did not give me that impression when I talked to him last fall. I see no reason to raise the question of the President's mental stability at this point, though I am glad Dr. Hutschnecker reports it is sound. It might be interesting to know whether Dr. Hutschnecker complied with ethics of the medical profession by getting permission to report on the President's health before writing his article for Look.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Good Omen for U.S. in France

PARIS. — The omens for our country now look good here. This France without De Gaulle holds great promise for American relations — for the French and for a better Europe. U.S. Embassy officials find that the omens start with the men President Georges Pompidou and Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas have chose to serve in the new government.

Although aging De Gaulle never lifted a finger to provide a successor and, in fact ,downgraded anyone who might appear qualified to succeed him, he always claimed that without him France would face chaos. His repeated and self-serving prediction was still ringing in French ears when, defeated, he went off to sulk in Ireland and refused to support even his own party. That action itself typified the tragedy of this very great man who restored France but so often bit the hands that fed him.

Nothing like chaos happened. The transition slipped by as gently as the sound of a contented Turk puffing on his bubble-bubble pipe.

President Pompidou, who pulled scores of De Gaulle's chestnuts out of the fire only to be rewarded by De Gaulle's ungrateful refusal to reappoint him Premier, always has been strongly pro-American. So has Chabon-Delmas, ever since the days he fought side by side with General Patton's troops in the French Resistance. In fact, many here feel that their warning to DeGaulle regarding the unpopularity of his anti-Americanism and their outspoken dismay when the American flag was torn from the American Cathedral and burned in the streets on April 7, 1967, marked the beginning of the end of their influence on him.

De Gaulle's long-time Foreign Minister, Maurice Couve de Murville, who was made premier when De Gaulle dropped Pompidou, literally symbolized anti-Americanism. Cuve de Murville, never more than a foreign affairs technician, was a mere echo of his master's footfall and voice. Pompidou kept seven of the previous 18 ministers, but he dropped Couve de Murville entirely — totally out of the government for the first time in 11 years.

Instead, Pompidou put foreign affairs in the hands of Maurice Schumann, whose credentials as a Pan-European statesman and advocate of close ties with our country and Britain are unsurpassed in all of Europe. Discovering that someone is the right sort of friend at a right moment carries a special sort of emotion for a long, long time, and this has been America's constant discovery in Maurice Schumann.

In another omen Pompidou brought back former Defense Minister and Premier Rene Pleven, who literally once saved France by getting the French Communists out of key places in the French Army and likewise received no thanks from De Gaulle for his courageous defiance of Moscow's pressures.

As a Pompidou minister Pleven thoroughly understands that the argument and differences between Moscow and Peking are basically concerned with the problem: Which is the best way to bury the West and erect a Red world. In fact, Pleven forecast this split to me — but only on these grounds — a long time ago.

In nuclear defense affairs De Gaulle had a champagne thirst with a beer pocketbook. There are an estimated 16,000 U.S. nuclear warheads installed in the NATO countries. Western Europe lives, and remains free, under the umbrella of our tremendous retaliatory striking force. After eight barrel-scraping years of preparation France exploded its first hydrogen bomb over the Mururoa Atoll in the Pacific last August. The stifling costs of De Gaulle's doubtful plunge toward atomic-arms independence has been a merciless weight felt throughout the French economy. Behind the scenes here new Defense Minister Michel Debre adds to the good omens by promising a reappraisal of De Gaulle's pet idea.

French and American business interests here do not feel so certain, however, about Finance Minister Giscard d-Estaing, a Gaullist maverick present in the new government as a result of political necessity. D-Estaing once enjoyed high confidence in top financial circles in our country but he killed off much of this by his attitude toward U.S. investments here and trade liberation as a whole.

De Gaulle made a career of exploiting our errors. Pompidou's government will not do that. Among Western diplomats you often heard a famous phrase here about De Gaulle: Resist him, he hates you. Obey him, he scorns you." Pompidou is as far from that as Paris is from Japan.

Thanks Young People

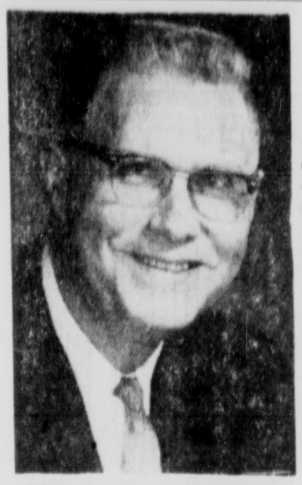

Editor: The Freeman:

The patients, physicians and research staff of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital wish to thank the people of your community, through your pages, for the generous contribution made in memory of leukemia victim Eileen Hansen.

Each of us at St. Jude feels the loss whenever leukemia takes another victim, especially one so young. But through the support of others like you we expect to win our fight against children's catastrophic diseases so that children the world over will not have to suffer from cancer, leukemia, muscular dystrophy and other dread diseases of children.

We especially wish to send our thanks to all the young people of Kingston who worked so much, the young seminarians and others who helped them in this tribute to Eileen Hansen. This nation and the world can learn much from these young people, and you have good reason to be proud of them all.

Very sincerely,
JOSEPH C. HARVEY JR.

Administration Unleashes More Desegregation Actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has snapped back at its civil rights critics by unleashing more school desegregation actions in the past three days than during the entire first six months of its existence.

Justice Department sources indicated there would be more to come, in what appeared to be an effort to counter criticism of last week's decision to relax September school desegregation deadlines for some Southern school districts.

In effect, the Justice Department was doing what it said it would last week when it promised to initiate even stiffer classroom desegregation action under the new procedures. At the time, however, that insistence was drowned out in the flood of controversy over the decision to abolish "rigid" September desegregation deadlines set by the Johnson administration.

Are Major Tests

Attacks on Georgia, Chicago and Waterbury, Conn., made in the form of letters threatening legal action, all broke new legal ground and were intended as major tests of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Almost submerged by these actions were six school desegregation suits filed in Louisiana, South Carolina, Illinois and Tennessee.

The Georgia suit was new in that the government took advantage of the fact the state board has broad authority to regulate public schools. Thus, it could file a suit against the state itself for allegedly blocking integration of schools.

Sidesteps Barrier

The Chicago suit sidestepped the old barrier of de facto segregation by charging that even residence patterns could not account for the imbalanced teacher assignments when many teachers "frequently travel considerable distance to attend a 'desired' school."

Perhaps the most innovative issue, however, was raised in Waterbury where the government attacked an arrangement in which white students avoid attending predominately Negro schools by going to Roman Catholic schools at the expense of Negro Catholic parents.

The arrangement, said to be prevalent in the Northeast, has never been raised before. Waterbury officials admitted the charges but said the city was working to correct the situation.

Police Probing 3 Break-ins At Saugerties

LAKE KATRINE

Troopers and BCI investigators from the zone headquarters here were investigating three break-ins today, one at the W. T. Grant department store at Simmons Plaza in Saugerties and two at the Grant D. Morse School at Blue Mountain.

Troopers said the thieves broke into the department store over night and got away with an undetermined amount of merchandise reportedly including television sets.

Thieves also entered the school at Blue Mountain late Wednesday or early this morning, for the second night in a row, they said. Entry was gained at the school through a rear window during the first reported break-in, but information on the second entry was not released as the investigation continued this morning.

Rosendale Has Training Course for Policemen

ROSENDALE

A diversified police training course including all phases of police work and court room procedure will be conducted for all Village of Rosendale police officers on Tuesday at 7:30 in Rosendale Firehouse, Main Street.

sonally cooperate in the training sessions.

He said no definite program of study has as yet been established and the program subjects will be adjusted as the course continues indefinitely. Guest lecturers, members of the County Sheriff's Office and the state police will present topics at various meetings.

Mayor Curran said the police officers are requested to attend in uniform. He said there is no compensation for attendance.

The mayor commended the local police force for its performance since he has taken office and said he wishes to express his appreciation for their increased morale and dedication to duty.

Mayor Curran also announced that the four new patrolmen, George Williams, Andrew DeGaust, Lawrence Craig and James Craig have completed their probationary period and their performance to date has been rated excellent.

Sheriff Aides Indicted in Raceway Scheme

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP) — Two Sullivan County deputy sheriffs were indicted Wednesday in connection with an attempt to forge pari-mutuel tickets at Monticllo Raceway.

James P. Rodgers, 51, and Milton Faer, 50, were charged with various degrees of forgery, conspiracy, attempt to commit grand larceny, criminal possession of forgery devices and stolen property.

Indicted with them were Frank Bastone, 42, and Gregory Bitondo, 36, both printers from the Bronx. They face similar counts of forgery and conspiracy in the case.

Police said that pari - mutuel tickets valued at $100,000 were confiscated Saturday night when the men were arrested. None of the winning tickets had been cashed.

Rodgers and Faer, who live in Monticello, have been suspended from the sheriff's department pending outcome of the charges. Rodgers was chief assistant deputy sheriff and Faer a deputy.

Town of Rosendale constables are also invited to the sessions.

The courses, lectures and discussions will be under the direction of Village and Town Justice Wilfred G. Doolittle, according to Mayor William P. Curran, who said he will per-

Owner Denies Douglas Lived On Post Street

KINGSTON

Charles Kempf, owner of a residence at 2 Post Street, said today that Jimmy Boston Douglas, 26, of 237 Hasbrouck Avenue, who is in custody in connection with the death of Mrs. Theresa Carpino, 61, of 744 Broadway, never lived at that address.

Douglas was arrested Tuesday on a charge of murder, after it was established the woman died of strangulation at the Circle Restaurant and Bar she operated on upper Broadway.

The accused man is scheduled for preliminary hearing before City Judge Hubert A. Richter at 9 a.m. Friday. Harry Gold, attorney for the defendant, at arraignment Wednesday, asked for an immediate hearing. The case was put over two days at the request of Asst. Dist. Atty. James Fisher.

Court Upholds Conviction of 2 In Murder Plot

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Appellate Division of State Supreme Court, in a 3-2 vote, on Wednesday upheld the conspiracy to murder conviction of Herman Ferguson, a former assistant principal of a Queens junior high school, and Arthur Harris.

Ferguson and Harris, both reputed members of the black militant Revolutionary Action Movement, were convicted in June, 1968, of plotting to kill moderate civil rights leaders Roy Wilkins and Whitney Young Jr. They were sentenced to 3½-7 years in prison.

Their appeal for a mistrial was based on the fact that the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy occurred during the trial. The senator's name had been mentioned during the proceedings and the defendants claimed his assassination prejudiced the jury.

The majority opinion held, however, that to declare a mistrial on this ground "would result in the frustration of the effective administration of justice."

The ABM Debate Heats Up, Gore Sees Strategy Shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Charles Percy says it is "pure hogwash" to argue that the Safeguard missile defense system is needed to strengthen President Nixon's hand for U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks.

And Democratic Sen. Albert Gore says such an argument put forth on behalf of the antiballistic missile program—ABM—in opening debate by fellow Democrats John C. Stennis of Mississippi and Henry M. Jackson of Washington represents "a shift of strategy" by the pro-Safeguard forces.

Teams With Percy

Gore teamed with Percy to needle Stennis and Jackson as the ABM debate in the Senate heated up Wednesday.

Gore noted President Nixon and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird had based their argument for ABM on the need to protect the nation's missile deterrent force. The Tennessee Democrat suggested ABM supporters were departing from that course when they contended Safeguard should be approved to boister the President for impending disarmament talks with the Soviet Union.

"Has the senator noted a shift of strategy and logic today?" Gore asked Percy.

"Yes," responded the Illinois Republican "I've noticed that. And the argument is pure hogwash."

Up jumped Jackson and Stennis, each demanding recognition to rebut the contention.

"The senator is mistaken. There has been no change in my position," said Stennis, chairman of the Armed Services Committee who opened the debate Tuesday by saying the need to stand behind Nixon was essential.

"I have not changed my position," Jackson said. "I believe there is a clear need to protect the deterrent. I also believe it is important the President not have the rug pulled from under him at negotiations."

While the ABM debate picked up steam, Laird's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at a June 23 closed door hearing was made public—providing an additional illustration of the wide split in Washington over what course should be taken in defense and disarmement.

Laird in his testimony re-emphasized the arguments for Safeguard and rejected a suggestion that the United States unilaterally suspend development of multiheaded missiles.

Vigorous Questioning

Under vigorous questioning by Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., Laird narrowed his earlier contention that the Russians were aiming for a devastating first-strike nuclear capability.

He said he was talking about a Soviet capability to knock out retaliatory U.S. Minuteman missiles in their permanent silos. He said he never contended this would be an overall knockout blow.

Fulbright insisted there was disagreement in the U.S. intelligence community over Russian capabilities and intentions. Laird replied there was none so far as capabilities were concerned.

During the Senate ABM debate Wednesday, Fulbright kept up his attack on the administration military policy.

"The real point of this whole debate," he said, 'is the effort by some members of the Senate to reassert some control over the military department of the United States.

"The point we have chosen to make that debate is the ABM," Fulbright added.

The Arkansas Democrat also said I think it is a great phenomenon, two great countries, the United States and Russia, are unable to stop the expenditure of funds that in this country totals $80 billion—this country, richest in the world, threatened with a form of bankruptcy."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., introduced their amendment to the $20 billion military procurement bill, which includes $759.1 million for ABM. The amendment prohibits deployment or site acquisition for Safeguard, but would provide for continued research, development, testing and evaluation of the antimissile system.

The Senate again put off indefinitely an expected secret session at which Stennis planned to outline classified details of the threat posed to the nation by the Soviet Union.

6 Being Treated At Hospital After Mishap

BALMVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Six persons, four of them children, were being treated at Newburgh's Saint Luke's Hospital today after a runaway car plowed through a crowd of summer school children, then crashed into the Balmville Elementary School.

Listed in satisfactory condition in the intensive car unit were Jo Ann Antonucci, 11, a pupil, and Maria Barranco, a passenger in the car. Mrs. Madeline Collins, the school principal, was listed in satisfactory condition. Both Mrs. Barranco and Mrs. Collins had been admitted in serious condition after Wednesday's accident.

Three other persons, all children, were also hospitalized, but none was seriously hurt.

A total of 14 persons, 10 of them pupils between the ages of 7 and 17, were hurt. Eight were released following emergency treatment at the hospital.

The youngsters were among 110 children enrolled for the school's summer session. They were standing around outside the building waiting for classes to start when a car driven by Santo Barranco, 46, of Guttenburg, N.J. rocketed through a hedge off Route 9W, careened through the school yard scattering children, then struck the building.

Witnesses said the youngsters were tossed "like bowling pins" by the out-of-control auto—some were knocked to the ground and others were thrown against the building. Onlookers said the crash sounded like a "terrific explosion," followed by screams and cries of the injured.

Barranco told police he lost control when the car's accelerator jammed.

The Barranco's home address was listed as 424 70th St.

Urged to Discontinue Great Lakes Sea Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twelve Senators urged Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird Wednesday to discontinue the Military Sea Transport Service at Great Lakes ports.

Their letter was made public by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., one of the signers.

It said: "At a time when nonessential defense expenditures must be kept at a minimum, it is disturbing to read that the Defense Department is operating a shipping service to the Great Lakes ports contrary to economic good sense.

"Reports indicate that the Great Lakes area simply cannot provide the Military Sea Transport Service vessels with sufficient cargo. The first ship sailed only two-thirds full and it is likely that the other vessels involved will do so also. We have been advised that in order to find sufficient cargo military traffic has been artificially routed through the St. Lawrence Seaway from points as far away as Georgia and Maryland. Moreover, these ships may well return empty because retrograde cargo returning to the U.S. is not moved inland."

Senators signing the letter with Tydings included Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., William B. Spong, D-Va., Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., Charles Mathias, R-Md., and Caleb Boggs, R-Del.

Chamber Sale On Brochure at Halfway Mark

KINGSTON

The sales campaign for the new civic brochure of the Kingston area has reached the half way mark, according to the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber also announced that the publisher will begin photograph coverage within "the next few weeks."

Windsor Publications, a firm specializing in civic brochures, is producing the brochure. The firm was selected by the board of directors of the Chamber who plan to use the brochure as a "sales tool" to attract industry and new residents to the Kingston area.

"The brochure will tell the whole community story in photographs and text and will cover everything from our history on through government, schools, churches, shopping and nearby recreation," said a Chamber official. The new booklet will be distributed by the Chamber at its Kingston office.

Youth Jailed On Charges Of Auto Theft

TOWN OF ULSTER

James B. Smith, 16, of Box 4, Rondout, was committed to the Ulster County Jail Wednesday in lieu of $1,000 on two counts of grand larceny third degree, charged with auto theft.

Smith was taken before Town of Ulster Justice Arthur A. Reilly after being arrested by Trooper Garry VanAllen of the Lake Katrine Zone Headquarters about 3 p.m.

Smith is scheduled to reappear July 16 before Reilly on the car theft charges.

Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother and Nanna, Mrs. Jeanette Corcoran, who passed away six years ago today, July 9, 1963.

MOTHER

Your memory lives amongst us,
With each passing year,
We see it in the faces,
Of those you love so dear.
Your nearness, we can always feel,
In everything we do.
A smiling face, a loving word,
Is just like having you.

Woodstock Forum Will Hear Critic

WOODSTOCK — Joseph Morgenstern, movie critic for Newsweek Magazine will be this week's speaker at the Art Students League Noon Forum Friday, July 11

The League Forum, which is open to the public at no charge, from noon to 1 p.m. is a weekly event at the League summer school in Woodstock at which outstanding personalities in the arts appear.

Regarded as one of the most brilliant critics on the film scene today, Morgenstern joined Newsweek in 1964 after five years at the New York Herlad Tribune, where he was an assistant movie reviewer, a drama reporter and an off-Broadway critic. From 1956 to 1958 he was a foreign correspondent for the New York Times in Switzerland and France.

A native of New York City, Morgenstern has been a writer-producer for National Educational Television and a publications including the New York Times magazine, Horizon, This Week, Today's Living, Family Circle and Organization in Central and Latin America. A founder of the National Society of Film Critics, he is the group's chairman for 1969. Earlier his year his first novel, "World Champion," was published by Simon and Schuster. He is married to actress Piper Laurie. They live in New York City and, as often as possible, in Woodstock.

The Art Students League summer school in Woodstock is about a mile from the village green, on Route 212 in the direction of Saugertis. There is adequate parking space for visitors.

A bust of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was placed in the Poet's Corner of Westminister Abbey, and honor accorded no other American.

Vols Talk Over Paid Firemen

SPRING LAKE — Spring Lake Fire Department is considering a proposal to employ full-time paid drivers and assistants to solve its manpower shortage.

It was reported at a recent meeting that attempts have been made to acquire new members.

In considering the proposal, it was noted that about eight men would be needed for the payroll and that costs would probably be about $50,000 per year which would have to come from tax revenue.

Although there has been an increase in the number of residents in the fire district, few if any of the new homeowners have responded to invitations to join the department, Fire Chief Clayton Elmendorf said.

The fire chief said that through natural attrition, the volunteer membership has dropped to a dangerous level in the number of men available at any given time to respond to a fire emergency. The number of dwellings and other structures have increased, and the reluctance of the new male residents to become volunteers all contribute toward making a potentially dangerous situation in an emergency, he said.

This matter will be discussed again at the fire company meeting to be held at Spring Lake Firehouse, Lucas Avenue Extension on Monday, July 28. All male residents of the district are welcome and prospective members may contact any member or inquire at the firehouse on Monday evenings between 7 and 9.

Final Town Equalization Rates

ALBANY — Final state equalization rates have been established for six Ulster County townships with four having the same rates as last year and two noting decreases.

Hurley's rate has been decreased from 22 to 21 and Marbletown's from 23 to 22.

Equalization rates are the ratio between the assessed value of local real property and its actual or full value as determined by the state. When market values rise in a community, but assessments do not the rates are lowered by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment.

Those towns having the same rates as last year are Esopus 18, New Paltz, Rosendale and Woodstock, all 13.

Lower rates usually means an increased share of school taxes and a lesser portion of state aid where centralized districts are involved.

The new rates announced by the state board for 21 cities and 342 towns in the state are based on assessment rolls completed in 1968.

Plans Meeting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon planned to meet today with the foreign minister of India, Dinesh Singh, to begin a review of Asian policy. The talks come within a fortnight of Nixon's departure for his visit to Asia and Romania. Dinesh Singh is in the United States on a nine-day official visit.

Nearly 1,300 at Paltz

Summer Grad Enrollment Up

NEW PALTZ

Increasing pressures on teachers to get a master's degree have pushed summer enrollments among graduate students at State University College, New Paltz, from 700 two years ago to 1,000 in 1968 and to nearly 1,300 this summer.

In New York State, teachers must have a fifth year of study beyond the bachelor degree to earn a permanent certificate to teach. Many teachers feel that the fifth year is so close to a master's degree that they might as well get the higher degree and the extra pay and academic standing that accompanies the degree.

Administrators, too, often look toward the master's degree holders when they are looking for teachers to promote into supervisory positions; and in better-paying school districts, the higher degree is a plus factor for the new applicant.

Although some education courses are required for the master of science in education—the degree most teachers seek at New Paltz—at least half the credits must be taken in the liberal arts field.

To meet their demand, and to provide graduate level courses at the same time to others in the Mid-Hudson region, the college this summer is offering 70 courses in the physical, biological, and behavioral sciences, foreign languages, art, music, theatre, speech, literature, geography, studies of Africa, Asia and Latin America, mathematics, history, political science, and economics.

While graduate enrollments rose, undergraduate enrollments went down to 824 from last year's 1,034. The college returned to the semester from the quarter system in the spring of 1968, and the 1,034 undergraduate enrollment in 1968 reflects the conversion status. The quarter system was initiated in 1963 at the request of State University with the hope that it would help make use of all campus facilities year around. But students never took to the quarter system with any significant interest and it was abandoned at New Paltz for academic and administrative reasons after five years trial.

Trio Charged As Trespassers

SHOKAN

Three 21-year-old men were taken into custody Wednesday a 3:45 p.m. by Deputy Sheriff Charles Hesley and charged with trespassing on posted property of the New York City Water Supply, Gas and Electricity Department at the Ashokan Reservoir.

Booked by the deputy who is assigned to the reservoir area were Mark Silverstein, of 9911 60th Avenue, Corona; Patrick William Salvo, of 3458 90th Street, Jackson Heights, and Jeffrey Mayer, of 4035 Ithaca Street, Elmhurst.

The trio pleaded guilty before Olive Town Justice Frank C. Carle and each was fined $50. Silverstein paid the fine, the other two were committed to the county jail in lieu of payment of the fines.

Hesley said the men were wading in the reservoir. He also noted that the three had been warned last Saturday not to trespass on the property or they would face arrest.

Dutchess Chest Names PR Man

POUGHKEEPSIE

Alford Lessner, vice president and station manager of a Beacon radio station, has been appointed Public Relations Division chairman for the Dutchess County Community Chest.

He will direct the efforts of a 22-member committee in publicizing and promoting the 18 agencies of the United Fund in achieving the 1970 campaign goal of $1,009,000.

Lessner, a graduate of New York University, has been involved with film and television production and direction for many years. He was associated with Allen Funt's CBS-TV production of "Candid Camera" and was vice president of Lane Productions, Inc.

He is an accomplished pianist, and was chief arranger for the United States Air Force band and symphony orchestra from 1951 to 1955.

Indians Win Valley Title

MIDDLETOWN

Kingston's Troop 12 Indians took the 1969 Hudson Valley Drum Corps Association Championship here Sunday, outplaying 11 corps in annual field day competition.

From this first time as a "standstill" unit, the troop now holds a gold plaque as the 1969 champs and a permanent trophy.

Thirty-five members were selected to participate in the competition, but after the event, the entire 89-boy corps performed in concert formation for the spectators.

In addition to the championship award, the troop took awards as first place in musical performance, first place as junior drum corps and second place in corps appearance.

Individual awards went to Philip Volpe, first place in soprano horn; Peter Gradiner, second place, soprano horn and Monte Kramer, third place baritone horn.

Says Sailor Victim At Drunken Party

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A friend of sailor Donald Lee Eagle told a jury Wednesday that Eagle and the Selkirk, N.Y. Navy Wave he is accused of strangling attended a drunken party the night before her body was found in a vacant lot April 18.

James Andrew Dale testified in the trial of the 25-year-old Sioux Indian from Pierre, S.D., who is accused of killing Sandra Sue Lincicome, 21. She was also raped.

Dale, a sailor stationed in the same squadron as Eagle, testified that he was renting an apartment with two other sailors at the time of the crime. He said he got off work April 17, went to his apartment and was joined by some friends, including Eagle.

He said they had several drinks during the night before going to the enlisted men's club at the Naval air station where they met Miss Lincicome, who left with the group to return to an apartment for a party.

Dale said some of the men and women "paired off." Dale said that Eagle kept to himself and when he began nodding in a chair, Dale and another man carried Eagle into the bedroom and put him to bed.

Eagle went to sleep some time later, Dale said. He said he could not remember whether the victim left the party before or after Eagle fell asleep.

But Dale did testify that he and Eagle had been battering a bedroom door with their fists earlier because "it seemed like the thing to do at the time."

But he said he did not know if Miss Lincicome left because the party got too boisterous, as police earlier indicated.

Miss Lincicome's partially clad body was found in a vacant lot only a short distance from the apartment about sunrise the following morning. A stocking was knotted around her throat.

Davey Heads Appeals Board in Hurley Town

HURLEY

Edward Davey was elected chairman of the Hurley Zoning Board of Appeals at an organizational meeting held Wednesday night at the Hurley Libraray.

Others elected to positions on the board were Edward Molley, vice-chairman; Frank Rafaldi, secretary; Henry Battenfeld, building inspector for the Zoning Board and Dr. Martin Contor, coordinator between the Town Board and the Zoning Board.

Tuesday night Davey represented the Zoning Board at a meeting between the Town of Hurley Planning Board and the Town Board. Master plans for the Town of Hurley, including West Hurley, were discussed, with emphasis placed on recreational facilities.

The Zoning Board of Appeals will meet on the second Wednesday of each month. The next meeting is scheduled for Aug. 13. There is no business before the board at this time.

More Protection

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House is considering more police protection for embassies in Washington, because "some problems have arisen relating to the well being of those who work in the embassies." Presidential spokesman Ronald Ziegler did not specify whether the added protection would be needed because of political demonstrations or local crime conditions. On Monday, shortly before the arrival of Ethiopian Emperor Haille Selassie, a group of demonstrators claiming to be Ethiopian students ransacked the Ethiopian Embassy.

Schovel Cuts Ribbon At Stewart Opening

SAUGERTIES — Town Supervisor A. Michael Schovel cut the ribbon at ceremonies that marked the official opening of Stewart's Ice Cream Company new store on Route 9W at Barclay Heights. The event was held Tuesday in the presence of Dist. Supervisor William Fuller and Russ Scarlett, store manager.

The grand opening took place on Wednesday.

Charles S. Dake, president of Stewart's, said Scarlett, who was manager of the company's store on Main Street in this village for 10 years, has been named manager at the new location. Leona Freligh will manager the Main Street store.

The Barclay Heights store reflects Stewart's new look with its distinctive brick facing and shake shingle roof. It will seat 43 people in booths and counter seats. The same quality dairy products will be featured with emphasis on fountain service, especially Stewart's famous "make your own" sundae.

Insurance Agent at Conference

Robert G Dawkins, special agent, of Prudential Insurance Company attended the company's President's Club Conference recently at the Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla.

The President's Club is the company highest leaders club with a membership consisting of leading special agents from throughout the United States. During the conference workshop sessions in addition to the program scheduled will be conducted by officials of the company. Of special interest will be the introduction of The Businessman's Guide to Security.

Invitation to the conference is extended to special agents of the company Ordinary Agencies Department who achieve a high level of professional ability especially reflected in the sale of life insurance to their clients and the concern displayed in service to the client.

Dawkins recently received the Award of Excellence in the company's Academy of Honor for his achievements in 1968. This is the highest award of the academy of which Dawkins has been a member for the past three years. In 1967 and in 1968 Dawkins had new business production in excess of a million dollars. This shows he helped provide his clients with more than one million dollars of Insurance protection in each of the last two years.

Area Business News

Rotron Promotes Hajec

Clyde J. Deavers, vice president-engineering at Rotron Incorporated of Woodstock, has announced the promotion of Richard G. Hajec to manager, Laboratory Operation of the company. Hajec was formerly the firm's chief aerodynamicist, having come to Rotron from The Torrington Manufacturing Company (now Torrin, Inc.) of Torrington, Conn.

In his new position, Hajec will be responsible for all Product Engineering Department laboratories, providing service to all engineering, manufacturing and marketing functions. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Mechancial Engineering from Worcester Polytechnic Institute and a Master of Arts degree in Applied Mechanics from the State University of Iowa. He is a member of the Woodstock Country Club, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Society of Heating, Refrigerating and Air Conditioning Engineers as well as the National Society of Professional Engineers. He is a Registered Professional Engineer in Connecticut.

Hajec and his wife, Lucy, reside at 8 Whitney Drive with their children, Jane, 9; Richard Jr., 7; and Ted, 5.

Stamp Club Holds Picnic

RHINEBECK — Stamp, Inc. annual Stamp Club picnic was held recently at Wilcox Memorial Park. The affair was attended by 100 employes, their families and friends.

Contests and games were held for the children under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Woods and prizes were awarded.

General arrangements for the affair were under the direction of Stamp Club Officers, Richard Simmons, Mrs. Frances Staffiero and Mrs. Gladys Kipp. They were assisted by Art Minn, Francis LaPierre and Thomas Cooke. The Food Committee was under the direction of Mrs. Laura Heinsohn who had many helpers. Miss Sarah Wyant provided publicity posters.

Stamp, Inc., a contract manufacturer, is located in the Sawkill Industrial Park, Rhinebeck and earlier this year celebrated its 20th Anniversary.

ADOPTION: A Look at the Prospective Couples

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this second of a three-part series on adoption, staff writer Lynn Mulvaney describes some of the couples who adopt children in Ulster County.

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Does a child adoption agency match the personality of the prospective parents with the youngster to be adopted?

"No!" explains Mrs. Maureen Gray, supervisor of the Children's Division of the Ulster County Department of Social Services.

'Just Like Us'

The adopting couples, however, will often argue, stating proudly that the child that is now sharing their home and their love, "is just like us!" They are even sometimes inclined to drag out baby pictures of themselves to make their point.

Couples adopting children for the first time also tend to have a happily-colored view of situations. They often feel their adopted child is "very special" and will substantiate the fact by saying, "Our doctor said so."

"We didn't produce her, so we can brag," they'll add and to this Mrs. Gray comments that, "Children with parents like these have a tremendous start in life."

Who are the couples who adopt children here in Ulster County? According to Mrs. Arlene Gertner, adoptive home finder, the prospective parents are generally closer to the age of 30 than any other age but there are couples who are in or near their forties who seek out older children and are often willing to adopt, for instance a brother and sister.

Some agencies, including Ulster, often hesitate to separate older brothers and sisters who have been living together in foster homes.

Some Adopt Up to Four

Years ago only childless couples were considered as adoptive parents. However this limitation does not hold true any more. Some families adopt up to four children and even couples with their own natural children are now able to adopt others.

In one instance here in Ulster County, a couple with two of their own boys agreed they would like to have a girl but found they were unable to conceive any additional children. They adopted a girl.

Home studies are made of prospective parents by Mrs. Gertner. A thorough evaluation is done and those generally ruled out are those couples whose marriage is shaky or feel that a child would pull them closer together.

Mrs. Gertner says that she and the agency are mainly interested in wanting to know, "What do you (the prospective couple) have to offer a child? (not in material things)" Rather, they wish to know, "What kind of life can be offered the youngster?"

Some couples, with the best of motivations are also turned down however. They are the couples with children of their own or older couples.

Special

"We would rather place a new baby with a young couple," Mrs. Gertner explains, adding, that if couples with their own children are really interested in helping out, they could take advantage of the availability of handicapped children or children of mixed races.

Emphasizing that adopting an older child can be more difficult on the adopting couple, the agency asks, "Can you live with his or her hangups?" "Can he or she live with yours?"

A Psychological Hurdle

Even though 78 Ulster County persons turned out for a recent meeting of the Child Welfare Department, indicating an interest in adopting a child, Mrs. Gray feels that although many couples make up their minds ahead of time to adopt a child, "It still takes stamina to come through the agency door," for to do so is generally an honest admission that they are unable to have children of their own. "It's a real psychological hurdle," she adds, "but many make it, happily.

Once that hurdle is accomplished, the actual steps toward adoption are begun, beginning with an application and an interview with a caseworker. The agency will ask questions about age, income, housing and health. There are no fixed requirements, however.

The purpose of the questions is to find out whether there is reasonable assurance that good care will be provided for the child until he or she is grown—without undue strain on the part of the adoptive parents, financial or emotional.

Security Paramount

What about families in which a wife will need to continue working after adoption of a child? This fact does not necessarily make the couple ineligible to adopt. It is important, however, that plans be made — especially when an older child is involved — to assure him of security in adjusting to his new parents and to provide responsible continuing care.

How does the agency become acquainted with the adopting couple? There is generally a series of interviews with a caseworker, some in the agency's office, some in the couple's home.

As soon as the agency notifies the couple that they have been approved for placement of a child, the couple will be considered as prospective parents for children ready for adoption. They will have opportunity to learn about the child selected for them and meet the child before they decide whether the youngster is the one for their family.

If the child is over one year of age, they will have several opportunities to visit him before he comes to live with them for good.

What does it cost to adopt a child? Public agencies charge no fee for adoption. The only cost is for the couple's attorney's fees for legal adoption proceedings.

NEXT: Where do the potentially adoptive children in Ulster County come from? An interview with Miss Jane Kilroy, caseworker for unwed mothers, and Mrs. Anne Decker who places foster home children, explains the many faceted problem in the third installment of a three-part series on local adoptions.

ON ADOPTION — "We consider ourselves professional people . . . an adopting couple must have faith in us as professionals . . . their confidentiality will not be dropped," says Mrs. Maureen Gray, supervisor of the Children's Division of the Ulster County Department of Social Services. Northern Dutchess Project

Work of Migrant Council Outlined

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK

Goals for the Migrant Council of the Northern Dutchess Community Services Organization were enumerated by Chairman Judy Priven at a recent meeting.

The first will be to "inform its members of special problems." She stressed that all migrants or growers employing migrants would be welcome on the Council, as they alone "know the problems involved firsthand and can deal with them directly."

Two main concerns will be medical care for migrants and a day care center for families. The health program planned by the office of the Red Hook public health nurse includes clinics at the day care center and "health-ins" or medical assistance programs that take place in the camps themselves. "Health ins" would be mainly of a diagnostic nature, with referrals made to physicians, dentists, or clinics in the area.

The Transportation Committee, headed by Mrs. Al Brooks, will provide drivers when necessary. Mrs. Leonard Neils is recruiting volunteers to help trained personnel for the clinics and "health-ins."

The Rev. Roger Leonard informed those present that the day care center will open as soon as the required number of eligible children have come to Red Hook, with a target date of July 15.

Mrs Robert Finnel is asking for volunteers to help scrub and paint July 10, 11, or 12 during the afternoon. St. John's Reformed Church has donated gym seal for the floors.

The Rhinebeck Ministerium has also indicated that it is willing to donate a substantial amount of money to the project. The Red Hook Ministerium has been active in the project since its inception.

Mrs. William Walsh is forming a corps of volunteers to direct activities for the preschool age children.

The Catholic Workers Farm is once again going to be the scene for the day care center. Mrs. Sidney Mead is public relations chairman.

30 at Charter Meet

KINGSTON

About 30 persons attended Wednesday night's meeting of the Ulster County Charter Commission which held a hearing in the County Office Building on the legislative aspects of the proposed charter.

One of the main points under discussion was whether to increase the present two-year term of the county legislators to four years. It was agreed to maintain the same number of legislators-33.

Ward W. Ingalsbe, chairman, has emphasized that all provisions of the charter will be influenced by the reactions and comments expressed at the hearings.

He urges county residents to attend future hearings presently scheduled for July 23 at 8 p.m. in the County Office Building and at future dates to be announced. The next hearing will deal with public works.

MRS. DONALD EUGENE PARKER
(Studio 54)

MRS. ROBERT OWEN JACKSON
(Photo Workshop)

Miss Diane Bagley, Tillson, daughter of Mrs. Henry Bagley Jr., and the late Henry Bagley Jr., became the bride of Robert J. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Smith of Rosendale on June 21, at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale. Miss Bagley is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bagley Sr., Rifton.

The Rev. Robert Saccoman officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar was decorated with white gladioli and palms and bouquets of white mixed flowers marked the family pews. Miss Kathy Kelly provided traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her brother, Douglas Bagley, the bride selected a traditional white satin gown with a white lace fitted bodice. The floor-length skirt was triple tiered and edged in scalloped lace. Her headpiece was a fingertip silk illusion veil attached to a crystal crown. She carried a bouquet of carnations, ivy and white orchids with white satin ribbons.

Miss Debbie Master, cousin of the bride, Whitestone, was maid of honor. She wore a pale yellow and white lace gown with a chiffon train. Her headpiece was a matching yellow flowerette and tulle viel. She carried a basket of yellow pompons, ivy and yellow ribbons.

Attendants were Miss Sharon Wright, Tillson; Miss Patricia Smith, Rosendale; and Mrs. John Smith, High Falls. Their mint green gowns were similar to that of the maid of honor's and their headpieces were mint green tulle veiling with matching bows. They carried baskets of yellow pompons and matching ribbons.

John Smith of High Falls was best man for his brother. Ushers were James O'Sullivan, Wayne Temple and John O'Leary of Rosendale and High Falls.

A reception was held at the Alpine for 75 guests.

For her wedding trip to Seaside Heights, N.J., the bride wore a pale pink linen dress with white accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Smith was graduated from Kingston High School, Class of 1968, and attended Ulster County Community College.

Her husband was graduated from Rondout Valley Central School, Class of 1965. He served two years with the U.S. Army including a tour of duty in Vietnam. He is employed by Century Cement, Rosendale.

Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at Mountain Road, Rosendale.

Ahavath Israel Synogogue was the setting of the wedding of Miss Gail Deena Kreppel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kreppel, 14 Colfax Place, Kingston, and Murray Lee Richman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Richman, 88 Lovering Avenue, Buffalo, on Saturday, June 28.

Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman officiated at the double ring ceremony and was assisted by Cantor Herman Slomovitz. Syd Doman sang traditional wedding selections. White gladioli, pink carnations, and white chrysanthemums decorated the synogogue.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride selected a gown of organza in skimmer style with the bodice and short sleeves of three dimensional Venise lace. The skirt was bordered with matching lace and featured a wide band of peau de soie. The silk illusion veil was shirred to a matching pillbox. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis, orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Jon Stark, sister of the bride, 32 Twin Lakes Drive, Monsey, served as matron of honor. She wore a gown of deep pink linen with an A-line full length skirt. The neckline and skirt hem were accented by deep ruffles of self fabric. She wore a matching Dior bow and carried a cascade of pink baby roses and gyp.

Attendants were the Misses Pamela Richman, sister of the bridegroom, 88 Lovering Avenue, Buffalo; Karen Marchetti, Ulster Park; and Lois Muller, cousin of the bride, 143 Pine Street, Kingston. Their bon bon pink gowns were styled identically to that of the honor attendant's. They carried cascades of pink baby roses and gyp.

Samuel Powazek, Buffalo, was best man. Ushers were Sheldon Richmond, Ronald Wuls, both cousins of the bridegroom of Toronto, Canada; and Jon Stark, brother-in-law of the bride, Monsey.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception for 175 guests was held at Ahavath Israel Synogogue.

For her wedding trip to Puerto Rico, St. Thomas and the Virgin Islands, the bride wore a yellow coat ensemble with black patent leather accessories and a corsage of phalaenopsis orchids.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School, Class of 1964, and a 1968 graduate of State University College at Buffalo, where she has completed her studies for a master's Degree in Foreign Language Education.

Richman is an alumnus of Riverside High School, Class of 1964. He received an Associates Degree from Niagara Community College in 1966 and a Bachelor of Science degree in Accounting from State University of New York at Buffalo in 1969. He is associated with the Certified Public Accounting firm of Sunshine and Wittlin, Buffalo.

Mr. and Mrs. Richman will reside at 212 Princeton Court, Buffalo.

Miss Karen Joy Cudney, daughter of Kenneth J. Cudney, 30 Mountain View Avenue, Hurley, and the late Violet B. Cudney, became the bride of Donald Eugene Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Parker, Rockford, Ill., on Saturday, June 21, at Hurley Reformed Church.

The Rev. Harold Schadewald officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Frank Welsh provided traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of summer flowers decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a white organza over taffeta gown, styled with a scooped neck, full skirt, a natural waistline and full sleeves. An organza bow held her floor-length veil and she carried a cascade of white roses.

Miss Christine Britt, cousin of the bride, Hurley, served as maid of honor. Miss Catherine Naccarato, cousin of the bride, Kingston; Miss Barbara Parker, sister of the bridegroom, Rockford, Ill., and Miss Linda Handzel, Schoharie, were attendants. They wore turquoise, floor-length gowns, styled with Empire waists and full sleeves. The honor attendant carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and the bridesmaids carried cascades of turquoise daisies.

Miss Debra Naccarato, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a turquoise gown, fashioned similarly to that of the other attendants', and carried a fireside basket of yellow daisies.

Alan VanHeusen, Port Ewen, was best man. Ushers were Jay Cudney, brother of the bride, Hurley; Larry Flowers, Kingston; and Riccardo Esposito, Kingston. Keith Naccarato, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception for 75 guests was held at the Church Hall.

For her wedding journey to the New England states, the bride wore a yellow dress and jacket with brown accessories and a corsage of apricot roses.

Mrs. Parker is a graduate of Kingston High School and State University College at Oneonta, where she was a member of Gamma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Miss Arlene Katherine Voerg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiliam A. Voerg, 8 Finger Street, Saugerties, became the bride of Robert Owen Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Handley Jackson, RD 2, Boonville, on Saturday, June 28, at St. Mary of the Snow Church, Saugerties.

The Rev. Father Hamilton officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Charles Dickman, organist, accompanied Miss Margaret Reese who sang traditional wedding selections. Vases of white chrysanthemums and pompons and baskets of assorted colored flowers decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a gown of imported linen and Swiss lace. The Empire bodice was appliqued with lace motifs and the long sleeves and chapel length train were edged with matching lace. A full length mantilla, also bordered with the same lace, was shirred to a camelot cap and she carried a cascade of orchids, lilies of the valley, and white roses.

Mrs. Dolores Voerg, 4 Finger Street, Saugerties, served as matron of honor for her sister-in-law. She wore a gown of pastel green crepe, styled with a bolero type Empire waist of white Swiss lace. The sheath style skirt was floor-length and featured a wide panel and bow detail at the back.

Attendants were the Misses Barbara Voerg, sister-in-law; Betty Scarlett, Diana Francello, all of Saugerties; Fran Capasso, Balston Spa; and Alice Tarzy. Their melon, blue, aqua, pink, and maize gowns, respectively, were styled identically to that of the honor attendant's. All attendants wore stylized headpieces in matching colors with tulle flirtation veils attached, and carried bouquets of pompons in colors to match their gowns.

Miss Kim Elizabeth Voerg served as flower girl. Her pink gown was styled similarly to that of the other attendants and she wore a crown of pink baby roses. She carried a bouquet of assorted colored pompons.

Vincent T. Fitch, Thornton Avenue, Boonville, was best man. Ushers were Thomas Jackson, brother of the bridegroom, Boonville; William Donald, and Vincent Voerg, all brothers of the bride, Saugerties; and James Vartuli, Boonville. William A. Voerg, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception for 175 guests was held at the Flamingo, Saugerties.

For her wedding journey to Cape Cod, the bride wore a brown and white dress, fashioned with a pleated skirt and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white roses.

The bride is a graduate of Saugerties Central School and State University College at Brockport. She is employed as a physical education teacher by Adirondack Central School, Boonville.

Her husband is an alumnus of Boonville Central School and State University College at Cortland. He is employed as a mathematics teacher by New Hartford Central School, Utica.

The couple will make their home at Barneveld.

Miss Helen Iris Horowitz Weds J. R. Wexler

The Granit Hotel, Kerhonkson, was the setting of the wedding of Miss Helen Iris Horowitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Horowitz, 3 Scudder Avenue, Kingston, and Jerry Robert Wexler, son of Mrs. Irving Wexler, Balmville Road, Newburgh, on Sunday, June 22.

Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman, Ahavath Israel of Kingston, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Cantor Herman Slomovits, Kingston, sang traditional wedding selections. A floral arch of greens and white flowers headed the aisle through which members of the bridal party passed. The aisle was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and daisies, and yellow and turquoise chrysanthemums. White and yellow bows were placed along the aisle. The ceremony was performed under a floral canopy of white gladioli, daisies, and yellow and turquoise chrysanthemums.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride selected an Empire style gown of white silk organza over taffeta. The gown was appliqued with imported handmade silk Alencon lace, and the neckline and bodice were accented with the same lace and seed pearls. The detachable cathedral length train was trimmed with Alencon lace and a headpiece, which was formed in the shape of petals and accented with seed pearls held her imported silk illusion veil. She carried a Bible which was covered by a white orchid.

Miss Sandra Horowitz, sister of the bride, 3 Scudder Avenue, Kingston, served as maid of honor. She wore a daffodil yellow chiffon gown, fashioned with an empire waist and a high rolled collar. A double bow of matching yellow silk illusion served as her headpiece and she carried a nosegay of white daisies, accented with turquoise and white streamers.

The Misses Tina Barr, cousin of the bridegroom, Highland Park, Ill.; Linda Cantor, cousin of the bride, Malverne, L.I.; Barbara Carole Stamler, W. Hartford, Conn.; and Mrs. Sheila Wexler, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Columbus, Ohio, were attendants. Miss Sheila Kligerman, cousin of the bride, Poughkeepsie, served as junior bridesmaid. Their turquoise chiffon gowns and headpieces were fashioned identically to that of the honor attendant's. They carried nosegays of white daisies with yellow streamers.

Dr. M. Jay Wexler, brother of the bridegroom, Columbus, Ohio, was best man. Ushers were Howard Banchek, cousin of the bride, Cleveland, Ohio; Richard Cantor, cousin of the bride, Poughkeepsie; Martin Wexler, cousin of the bridegroom, Newburgh; and Don Ruffett, Boston, Mass.

A reception for more than 200 guests was held at the Granit Hotel, Accord.

The bride was graduated from Kingston High School, Class of 1966. She is a senior at Emerson College, Boston, Mass., where she is majoring in speech pathology and audiology and is a member of Kappa Gamma Chi sorority. She is also a member of Sigma Alpha Eta, national organization of persons in the field of speech and hearing.

Wexler is a 1965 graduate of Newburgh Free Academy. He has completed his liberal arts studies in a special two year program at Boston University. He is entering his third year at Boston University School of Medicine.

Upon their return from their wedding journey to Puerto Rico and St. Thomas in the West Indies, the couple will make their home at Brighton, Mass.

Every Scout Is a Cook at National Boy Scout Jamboree

At the seventh National Boy Scout Jamboree, to be held July 16 to July 22 at Farragut State Park, Idaho, more than 35,000 Scouts will be cooking the same meals at the same times over 3,500 charcoal fires. In every patrol nine hungry Scouts and one sturdy leader, each Scout will take his turn as cook and cook's assistant. There will be 3,500 patrols in the 19 camps strung out along Lake Pend Oreille, and each patrol will be responsible for its own three meals a day.

The amount of food consumed at a Boy Scout Jamboree is staggering. For the more-than-a-million meals at this summer's get-together, more than 85,120 loaves of bread, nearly a half million quarts of milk, and over 22,032 pounds of hot dogs will be needed. Soups, a standby in hearty recipes, are being donated by Campbell Soup Company, which will contribute about 54,800 cans of nine different soups to the Jamboree Commissary.

Menus, prepared in advance, provide for substantial meals of favorite foods, easy to prepare, and appealing to outdoor teenagers. Typical of the lunches are those for Friday, July 18, and Sunday, July 20.

'A Delightful Comedy' -- New Woodstock Offering

STANLEY BROCK

GEORGE GITTO, DIRECTOR

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

Woody Allen's delightful comedy "Don't Drink the Water" opened at Woodstock Playhouse Tuesday night. Released for the first time as a summer stock production, it was directed locally by talented actor-director George Gitto. The comedy, which could become unwieldy in less professional hands, came off with satisfying results for the first nighter audience.

Allen has taken the ordinary and weaved it into "situation funny" routines. He comes up with some of the best comedy lines heard this season.

Too Light for A Message

Action takes place in an American embassy somewhere behind the Iron Curtain. A little of the "Ugly American" theme comes through Allen's dialogue but the play is too light to really have any meaty message. It is a fun vehicle although some of the characters do come off with lines one would love to have said at some time or other but doesn't dare.

In the plot, the vacationing Hollanders, mother, husband, daughter find themselves fleeing the Reds after having taken a shot of "off limits" installations. Taking the part of the fanatically clean mother hen is Jane Lloyd-Jones, no stranger to Woodstock Playhouse boards.

A long list of credits for Miss Jones includes stock and appearances on dramatic TV. She appeared on Broadway with Boris Karloff in "The Shop at Sly Corner" and in "The Grey-Eyed People." A polished actress, she is especially good in this type of role.

Appearing as the "I'm in the catering business...." husband is Stanley Brock, a natural for the part. Besides work in stock and numerous TV shows and commercials, Brock has been seen in the films "Black Like Me," "Requiem for a Heavyweight" and "The Swimmer." His antics as a doting father, gourmet, international fixer-upper lead into some very hilarious situations.

Gene Nye returns to Woodstock in this Allen comedy as the Ambassador's "National Disaster" son. Nye gives a very creditable performance taking to comedy with tremendous ease.

Also appearing in Allen's tongue-in-cheek story about an American Embassy are such talented performers as Harold Miller in the role of Father Drobney; Philip Gushee as Ambassador Magee; Arthur Gray, Kilroy; Barbara Houston as the fleeing daughter Susan Holander; and Ned Leavitt as the dreaded Communist police officer Krojack. Rounding out the cast of performers are Charles Hellmich as Burns; Gary Miller as he chef; Sam Tesoriero as the Sultan of Bashir; Jodi Greenberg, the Sultan's first wife; Stephen Webster as Kasnar and Martha Theobold as Countess Bordoni.

Sitting in on a performance of "Don't Drink the Water" is a very pleasant way to spend a summer evening. Executive Producer M. Edgar Rosenblum has given the area another choice summer stock production — it will amuse and delight everyone.

Next week, Woodstock Playhouse turns to Martin Duberman's moving and poetic play of a struggle of our times, "In White America." Original music will accent this presentation.

Curtain time at Woodstock Playhouse is 8:40 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Townspeople Respond, Aid Vietnam Marine

TIPTONVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) —Marine Sgt. Thomas Henry Taylor goes to the bank today with a check for $900 as a substitute for Vietnam service pay he thought he had kissed goodbye forever — plus $400 more in goodwill money.

The money came from townspeople in response to the story of a robbery and what the money was supposed to mean to the young Marine and his family.

Taylor had been in the United States less than 24 hours after a 20-month tour in Quang Nam Province with the 7th Marine Regiment. He entered a downtown Memphis bank and cashed his paycheck.

The sergeant headed for Tiptonville with his pay, carefully saved to help his invalid father, mother, six sisters and four brothers, aged 4-17.

Taylor's mother, employed for $60 per week in a local factory, had been ill for five weeks and the family had been living on credit.

"He had been planning this for a long time," said his father, J. B. Taylor. "He wrote me several months ago and said, 'Daddy, I think I'm going to be able to bring $1,000 home for you.'"

A few blocks from the bank last Thursday three men took the bills at knifepoint.

Taylor returned home stunned but without bitterness.

"They (the robbers) probably didn't know I made the money in Vietnam," he said.

The elder Taylor felt differently.

"I only feel sorry for my son," he said. "I think the man that robbed my son ought to be sent to Vietnam so they can see how he earned it."

The family's plight was described in a Memphis newspaper, The Commercial Appeal and citizens responded. Among the gifts was a cashier's check from an anonymous donor for $900.

"I didn't know people could be this good," said Taylor. "Something like this makes you feel like the time you spent in Vietnam was worth it.

"I've got some people to thank," he grinned. "I'm going to put the $900 check in an account in my mother's name so she can pay off her bills.

"And I'm going to take my girl out tonight."

Camping Area Cleared, Seek To Trap Bear

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—Rangers at Yellowstone National Park cleared a camping area of tourists late Wednesday, then lay in wait for a lumbering bear that attacked two men earlier in the day.

Asst. Park Supt. Vern Hennesay said he doubted whether the trap would be successful. "We don't hold out too much hope of locating him," Hennesay said.

The attacks were the second and third this summer. Last June 10, Daphne Jax, 5, of St. Paul, Minn., was mauled by an aging grizzly in the fishing bridge camp ground, the same location as Wednesday's attacks.

The two latest victims, David Lou, 22, of Los Angeles, and Michael Rock, 23, of Carnegie, Pa. suffered only minor head wounds. They were taken to a park hospital.

Lou was sleeping in a tent about 3 a.m. when the bear walked in and attacked him. About 30 minutes later, Rock was attacked as he lay in his sleeping bag outside his car, about a quarter of a mile away from the first attack.

"From the description of the bear, we believe it is the same animal," Park Supt. Jack Anderson said.

The two men were caught by surprise and were only able to describe the animal as "large and brown."

Rangers said they had no idea what caused the animal to attack. There was no food near either man and all the garbage disposal units at the campgrounds had been "bear-proofed."

Trawler Heads For Rendezvous With Raft

KRISTIANSTAD, St. Croix, Virgin Islands (UPI)—A converted trawler steamed east today to meet Thor Heyerdahl's storm-battered raft, Ra, to escort her on the last leg of her transatlantic voyage.

Heyerdahl, a Norwegian scientist-explorer who wants to show that ancient Egyptians could have reached South America, asked for the escort after he scuttled Ra's lifeboat and used the las spare papyrus bundles on board to support a sagging stern.

The 74-foot twin diesel Shenandoah will pick up two cameramen today at Fort de France, Martinique, and proceed east at nine knots to rendezvous with Ra.

Captain Gary Clamp said he expected to reach the rendezvous point, about 850 miles east of Martinique, Sunday night or Monday morning. The Ra's last reported position, at 10 a.m. EDT Wednesday, was 1,050 miles due east of Fort de France, and the raft was moving westward in rough seas at a speed better than 2.2 knots.

PWP Slates Picnic, Dance

KINGSTON

Two events are scheduled this weekend by members of Kingston Chapter, 383, of Parents Without Partners.

A picnic for members and their families will be held Sunday, July 13, at North Lake. All will meet at Caldor's Shopping Center parking lot at 9 a.m.

The local group also will join in the Mid-Hudson Chapter of PWP of Poughkeepsie in a dance slated for Friday night, July 11, at the Villa Lipani in New Paltz. The dance is set for 9 p.m.

Kaley Feature At the Hobbit

KINGSTON

Folk singer Danny Kaley will be featured at the Hobbit Coffeehouse Friday and Saturday nights.

Performances will be given beginning at 8 p.m. in the Fair Street Church "dungeon."

Also slated for appearances later this month are Robert Lee of New York City who will perform July 18 and 19 and Bonnie Peterson of New Paltz who has been booked for July 25 and 26.

It Was a Night to Remember

For Tom Seaver—Greatness and Sadness

END OF A DREAM — At right, Jimmy Qualls (R) of the Chicago Cubs, stands at first base after getting the one and only hit off Met Pitcher Tom Seaver in the top of the ninth inning at Shea Stadium Wednesday night. First baseman is Donn Clendenone. At left, Met Catcher Jerry Grote (L) consoles Seaver as he stands on pitcher's mound looking out toward left field after everyone had left the field. Mets won, 4-0, to move to within three games of first place. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

He Simply Stood There

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was all over and time for everybody to go home, but Tom Seaver didn't want to leave the pitcher's mound.

He simply stood there staring out toward left field, looking like he had lost something.

He had. A perfect game.

One by one, Seaver's eight teammates who had been on the field for the final out Wednesday night came over to pump his hand or clap him on he back. Many of the other New York Mets streamed out of the dugout and onto the turf to congratulate Seaver.

Still, he merely stood there.

Finally he walked off into the dugout. His face was chalk white and he seemed in a state of shock.

The largest baseball crowd ever at Shea Stadium, 59,083, including some who had waited in line since 7 a.m., kept chanting, We Want Seaver. We Want Seaver," but the numbed 24-year-old Golden Boy of the Mets' didn't seem to hear.

In the corridor leading to the clubhouse, Seaver noticed his wife, Nancy.

Nancy Seaver is blonde, blue-eyed and beautiful—but she wasn't beautiful now. She had been crying from the seventh inning on and her eyes were moist and red-rimmed.

Don't cry," Tom Seaver sought to comfort his wife. We won, 4-0."

That wasn't exactly news to Nancy Seaver.

She knew all the statistics. She knew her husband had just beaten the first place Chicago Cubs for his 14th victory and his eighth straight. She also knew he had struck out 11 in hoisting the incredible, unbelievable Mets within three games of the top in the National League East. And she and everybody else in the ballpark knew Tom Seaver pitched perfect ball until Jimmy Qualls, the Cubs' rookie center fielder, singled to left with one man out in the ninth.

That's what I was looking at when I was standing out there on the mound after the game," Seaver explained.

'At what?" someone asked him.

At where the ball was hit," he said.

You mean the base hit?"

That's right, the base hit."

Jimmy Qualls is a rookie 22-year-old switch hitter who came into Wednesday night's game with a .244 average. The Cubs brought him up from Tacoma in mid-June and Seaver never had faced him before.

Case the ninth inning and Seaver was so nervous that he could, as he said, feel my heart pounding."

It pounded even more as he got the first out of the inning when Randy Hundley, attempting to bunt, was thrown out by Seaver himself.

Qualls' heart was pounding a bit, too. Coming in from his outfield position at the start of the ninth, he knew he was the second man up and it was on his mind as he trotted across the grass.

I kept telling myself 'Don't be nervous, Don't be nervous,'" Qualls said.

One pitch and Seaver's dream was all over. He made that pitch a little too good, a little more over the plate than he wanted, and Qualls hung it out there in left field for a single. There was never any doubt from the moment the rookie ripped it.

I felt it all go out of me," Seaver said. All the emotion and all the pressure."

Seaver's buddy, Jerry Koosman, the Mets' fine left-hander, felt something else.

Being a pitcher, I put myself in his shoes when it happened," Koosman said. I felt heart-broken. Tom came so close. You have to be a pitcher yourself to understand what it means."

MIXED EMOTIONS — Tom Seaver of the New York Mets displays mixed emotions as he meets the press Wednesday night following his near perfect pitching performance. Seaver went 8⅓ innings, retiring the first 25 men he faced, before rookie Jim Qualls of the Chicago Cubs singled. It was the only hit in an otherwise perfect game as the Mets won, 4-0. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Tom Seaver walked off the field at Shea Stadium with a standing room crowd of 59,083 fans giving him a lengthy standing ovation—and he was probably the most unhappy man in the park.

Seaver pitched a perfect game for 8 1-3 innings, retiring the first 25 batters he faced before Jim Qualls, a little-used rookie, singled in the ninth. The 24-year-old right-hander finished with the one-hitter as the New York Mets beat Chicago 4-0 to cut the Cubs' lead in the National League's Eastern Division to three games.

"I was conscious of the perfect game all the way," said Seaver. "The crowd made a helluva difference. My wife and father were at the game and I wanted to do it for them and for the crowd. I was very moved by their reaction.

"My heart was pounding so hard in the ninth inning I could feel it go right through me. I just gave it all I had," said Seaver.

Randy Hundley opened the ninth and attempted to bunt for a hit but Seaver threw him out. Qualls then singled sharply to left to ruin Seaver's bid to become the first Met ever to pitch a no-hitter—let alone a perfect game.

"I wasn't sure how to pitch to Qualls," said Seaver. "It's the first time I've seen him. I threw him a pitch that wasn't exactly where I wanted, but it wasn't a bad pitch."

Yet Seaver remained philosophical. "It'll give me something to think about for the next few days. After a few days I'll look back and it'll be a one-hit shutout and it won't be so bad after all."

Elsewhere, Los Angeles downed Atlanta 3-1, San Francisco whipped Houston 10-3, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 5-3 after losing the opener 7-1, Pittsburgh swept Montreal 4-3 and 3-2 and Cincinnati shaded San Diego 4-3.

The Mets gave Seaver all the support necessary before Cub starter Ken Holtzman could retire a batter. Tommie Agee led off the first with a triple and scored on Bobby Pfeil's double. Seaver singled in one run and Agee doubled in another in the second and Cleon Jones hit his 10th homer in the seventh.

The victory was the Mets' seventh in a row and Seaver's eighth consecutive triumph. He is now tied with Atlanta's Phil Niekro for the major league lead in victories with 14.

Maury Wills singled in the deciding run with two out in the eighth inning as the Dodgers beat the Braves and boosted their Western Division lead to a game and a half.

Willie Crawford singled, took second on a sacrifice and scored on Wills' single. Wills went to third on an error and scored when Manny Mota, who has 18 hits in his last 31 at-bats, had his third hit of the game.

Bill Singer pitched a four-hitter to record his 12th victory.

The Giants rallied for four runs in the seventh and added four more in the eighth on Bob Burda's grand slam homer en route to their rout of the Astros. Denny Lemaster had a one-hitter until the seventh, when Ken Henderson's double and singles by Willie Mays and Dave Marshall highlighted the inning. Burda homered the next inning after the bases were loaded on Mays double, Jim Davenport's single and a walk.

Lou Brock hit a two-run homer with one out in the eighth to give the Cardinals their second game triumph after Johnny Briggs' two-run homer helped the Phils win the opener. Woody Fryman pitched a seven-hitter for the Phils in the first game while Nelson Briles, the first game starter and loser, relieved and won in the second game.

Jose Martinez singled in Richie Hebner with the winning run in the 10th inning of the opener and pinch-hitter Willie Stargell doubled home Fred Patek in the eighth inning of the second game as the Pirates swept the Expos.

Tommy Helms had three extra base hits and a single, drove in a run and scored two, including the decisive one in the seventh as the Reds edged the Padres. Helms doubled in the seventh, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on starter Jim Merritt's sacrifice fly.

British Open — 2nd Round

Nicklaus, Casper Are Out in "33"

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Bill Casper cranked up a typical American challenge in pursuit of New Zealand's Bob Charles at the outset of the second round of the British Open Golf Championship today.

Nicklaus, starting nine shots behind Charles' record-equalling 66 in Wednesday's kickoff round, grimly tackled Royal Lytham's 6,848-yard par 71 course and promptly conquered at least the first half of it.

Nicklaus, the blond belter from Columbus, Ohio, went out in a two-under-par 33. He bogeyed the third hole but then the long game and putting that has carried Nicklaus to the heights clicked with two straight birdie 4s on the sixth and seventh, and a birdie deuce at the ninth.

Casper, of Anita, Calif., starting off with a solid one-under-par 70, had less of an assignment to overhaul Charles and went about it in workmanlike fashion. He, too, shot an outgoing 33 with two birdies and seven pars.

The field of 130 was blessed with an overnight rain that freshened the course and encouraged bold play. The ball was staying where it was hit, which is mostly what the top stars want.

Only the low 70 and ties will survive tonight's 36-hold cutoff. After Friday's third round the field again is cut to low 45 and ties for Saturday's final.

George Archer, the U.S. Masters champion from Gilroy, Calif., withdrew from the championship because of illness.

The 6-foot-6 Californian, who shot a 79 Wednesday, was stricken with gastro enteritis and a heavy cold soon after he arrived in Britain.

Doctors confined him to bed for two days and he had little chance to practice on the course.

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI)—Second round scores at the British Open Golf Championships Thursday were:
Gay Hunt, England, 76-69—155
Barry Frankling, South Africa 74-78—152
Harry Bannerman, Scotland, 75-79—154

TIANO'S TOPICS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

The United States Golf Association has just released a characteristically obtuse modification of Rule 1-3 which deals with Amateur Status and refers specifically to faculty members of an educational institution giving instructions in golf as part of his duties.

Thoroughly confused by the release, we decided to call the rules division of the USGA in New York City and get it from the horse's mouth.

Frankly, the horse couldn't shed too much light on the subject.

THE RULE CHANGE now reads: Golf instruction may be given to students at an educational institution by a fulltime faculty member, provided that the total time devoted to golf instruction comprises not more than 10 percent of his annual teaching time.

"Camp counsellors who give golf instruction as part of their compensated duties are not amateur golfers."

The key word is "instruction" but the new rule made no reference to the question of compensation. The old rule said that any person receiving "extra compensation" for instructing golf or serving as coach was a nonamateur and therefore ineligible for most USGA competition.

IT WAS STILL a bit hazy, so we pressed the man in New York.

"Your statement isn't quite clear to me," I told the man.

"Oh.

"For example what is the status of a man who, let us say, teaches music in a school system and handles the golf team as extra duty for which he receives compensation?" we asked

"If he doesn't give instructions, but merely arranges the schedule, supervises the team, etc., he is entitled to extra compensation without forfeiting his amateur status," the USGA man replied.

Is it conceivable, we pressed, that men like let's say George Cosenza, the tuba expert of the Saugerties Central school system or Ricky Barthel of Onteora High could serve as golf "coaches" and not give golf instructions?

"That is a matter for the individual to decide," the man replied.

BY NOW WE WERE thoroughly confused. On the one hand the USGA says golf "instruction" may be given provided the total time devoted to golf 'instruction" doesn't exceed 10 percent of the teachers' time.

On the other hand the USGA man tells us the coach may recive extra compensation and retain his amateur status provided he doesn't give "instructions."

We liked the old rule better—at least it read with some clarity. A physical education teacher was in violation if, under any circumstances, he gave instructions in golf as part of his duties. A teacher of academic subjects was allowed to give golf instruction as part of his duties only if he were hired to teach academic subjects and if he were asked to instruct in golf only after he had been employed and not as a condition of employment.

He could instruct in golf only as an incident to his other duties and must have done so without additional compensation and with no reduction in his academic work-load.

THE USGA CLAIMS there has long been substantial sentiment to amend the rules to allow faculty members of educational institutions to give some instruction in golf to students. It believes the new exceptions to Rule 1-3 will satisfy those with such sentiments.

At the same time it is felt that the change will not do harm to golf's strong amateur code, because it will not permit a good amateur golfer to supplement his income by giving instruction part-time in golf at a school, and because no faculty member of an educational institution will be able to concentrate on golf only, primarily.

The USGA also feels that the exception will not result of employment of bona fide golf professional. In most areas bona fied golf professionals cannot be employed to teach golf in schools because certain credentials are required before one is allowed to teach. Golf professionals are not generally eligible. for these credentials.

WE WISH THE USGA would take a leaf from the tennis book and cut out its nit picking with respect to school teachers who serve as golf coaches.

We have known some so-called golf "coaches" who were nothing more than chaperones and were quite frank about their lack of knowledge of the game. But the extra stipend of $200 or $300 made them non-amateurs. Ridiculous.

But there are other teachers like George Cosenza and Rick Barthel who are fine amateurs and should not be subjected to the stringent interpretation of the Amateur Rules.

Can you imagine George or Ricky standing idly by while one of their boys shanks all over the place without trying to correct it? Ridiculous.

We say the rule is ridiculous. No man has greater fealty to the Amateur Code of golf than we do, but in this particular instance we pass.

AL Boasts Old Time Power

But Brooks And Yaz Are Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — The American League hopes to roll out the old home run cannon to try to snap the National League's six-game win streak in the July 22 All-Star game at Washington with sluggers like Reggie Jackson and Frank Howard in the starting line-up.

The big surprise in the line-up, announced Wednesday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was the absence of Baltimore's Brooks Robinson, the third base starter five years in a row. Brooks gave way to Sam Bando of the Oakland A's.

Baltimore, breezing along in the Eastern Division, wound up with outfielder Frank Robinson and first baseman John "Boog" Powell in the starting eight (pitchers are picked later). Oakland, running second to Minnesota in the Western Division, also had a pair—Bando at third and Jackson in the outfield.

Rico Petrocelli, Boston's shortstop who has developed into a long ball threat, topped the balloting of players, managers and coaches with 286 votes. The next best was Jackson's 260. Players were not permitted to vote for their own teammates.

Howard, the giant-sized Washington slugger who is fighting with Jackson for the home run title, was one of three repeaters from the 1968 starting line-up. The others were catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, the current batting leader.

Baltimore and Oakland each had two starters and Minnesota, Boston, Washington and Detroit one each. By divisions the East had five, the West three.

Members of the National League's starting line-up will be announced Friday afternoon. The remainder of the 28-man squads, including pitchers, will be selected by the managers and announced over a 10-day perid.

Mayo Smith, who led Detroit to the pennant last year, will manage the Americans against Red Schoendienst, his World Series rival as skipper of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The vote for third base was close with Bando beating Brooks Robinson 163-126. At first it was Powell over Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota 210-96. Killebrew also got 33 votes for third base although the players were told to vote for a man at only one position Carew won over Tom Harper of Seattle, 255-32 in the second base competition involving nine players. Petrocelli had a 286-18 edge over Mark Belanger of Baltimore at short and Freehan beat out John Roseboro of Minnesota 155-74 for the catching job.

Outfielders were not named by position. The top men were Jackson, 260, Frank Robinson, 250, and Howard, 169. Next best was Paul Blair of Baltimore, 98.

The 1968 starters who did not make it were Killebrew at first, Brooks Robinson at third, Jim Fregosi of California at short and Willie Horton of Detroit and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, winner of two straight league batting titles, in the outfield. Any or all may be picked later by Manager Smith.

KINGSTON

Knights of Columbus tallied four runs in the second inning and seven more in the fifth, along with two in the first stanza to defeat Miron Lumber, 13-3 in a Babe Ruth League contest. The win was the seventh of the season for the Knights, who lead the National Division with a 7-1 record.

In other action on the Babe Ruth League front, Chidsey-DeForest crept back into second place in the National Divison by nipping the Elks, 2-1. The winners needed one in the top half of the sixth stanza to pull it out over the Elks.

George Fatum was the hitting star for the K of C, going two-for-three with three ribbys. Dick Hoffstatter and Tom Triscari had two ribs each for the winners.

Dennis Rapp had two-for-three for the losers, with losing pitcher Tom Tubby and Tom Murphy getting doubles.

Charlie Barton was the winning pitcher.

Winning pitcher Craig Struble came through in the clutch at the plate to give his pitching the deciding run to work with as he doubled home Joe Fay, who had reached on an error. Losing pitcher Jim Milano had not allowed a hit until that time.

Struble allowed four hits, Milano three. Steve VanKleek went two-for-two for the losers.

Johnny's Wins Over Ted's Esso

SAUGERTIES

Johnny's Hotel downed Ted's Esso, 6-4, Wednesday night in the Met Division of the Saugerties Softball League. In the other game, Helsmoortel Insurance swamped the Knights of Columbus, 15-4.

Johnny's, pacing the Village Conference with a 7-1 record, needed two runs in the top of the seventh inning to win. Earl Martin was the leading hitter for the winners with a single and a triple. Mike Brady had two ribbys.

Jack Hillje was the winning pitcher, while Maurice Hinchey took the loss.

Helsmoortel exploded for 11 runs in the top half of the first inning, adding two in the third and two more in the fourth. Doug Freese was the winning hurler, while Joe Cullen took the loss.

Fred Seither paced the 11-run first with a three-run homer and a single. Tom Zulick had three hits and three ribbys, Lou Parisi had a single and a double with two rbis and Rene Clark went three-for-three.

Donna Is Heading For the Concord

KIAMESHA LAKE

When Donna Caponi wrapped up the U.S. Women's Open for her first tournament victory, she joined a select group of PGA golfers.

Lee Trevino and Orville Moody of the male circuit claimed the U.S. Open as their first major tournament victory.

Trevino won his first tournament at Rochester, N.Y., site of the 1968 Men's Open. Moody captured his first crown in June in the 1969 U.S. Open at Houston.

Miss Caponi, the chunky 24-year-old professional playing out of Burbank, Calif., fired a sizzling 4-under-par 69 in the final round to win the 17th Women's Open amid thunder and lightning at Scenic Hills County Club in Pensacola, Fla.

Filed in Hurry

Following her sparkling victory in the U.S. Open, Donna, known as the "Watusi Kid" by her sister players, lost little time in announcing she was pointing for the $35,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association's 72-hole national championship at the Concord Hotel July 23 through July 27.

Miss Caponi, who has finished second seven times in her five years on the tour, told Leonard Wirtz, the LPGA's busy executive director, "If I can walk, I'll be there (Concord). All the girls had a fine time there last season. It's a great course and I would be cheating myself not to go there again."

Donna has been playing in improved style this season. She came up with an 8 7and 81.

DONNA CAPONI, Open Champ

put together a final round 35-34 over the par 73 Scenic Hills course in Pensacola for a 72-hole total of 294 to pick up the Open crown and first place prize money of $5,000.

Over the Concord's more demanding plush layout last summer, Miss Caponi finished only in a 3-way tie for 12th place. She started off well by posting an under par 76 but in the succeeding two rounds she

Top Professionals Due

According to Wirtz, Miss Caponi will be joined by every top professional on the tour. These will include such perennial stalwarts as Kathy Whitworth, top money winner on the tour; Carol Mann, Sandra Haynie, Marilyn Smith and Sandra Spuzich who finished first to fifth in that order in money earnings last year.

Mickey Wright, the four time Open champion from San Diego, is also expected as well as three British stars — Vivien Saunders, Gwen Brandom and Elizabeth Ann Collins, who will tune up in a tournament at Danbury, Conn before taking part in the national championship event here.

In the meantime, Ed Furgol, the former United States Open champion who is the resident pro at the popular Catskill resort, has been busily engaged in plotting a course that will provide the women with a par-73, rather than the 77 that faced them during last summer's Concord Open.

"We have the greatest golf course in the world," said Furgol with emphasis. We plan to make it an ideal one for top women's play. The tees for the girls will be advanced on nine of the holes so that the playing yardage is reduced from 7700 to 6300 yards.

"The women pros who played here last year were all highly enthusiastic about the layout as it existed then," Furgol continued. "Wirtz still keeps telling me that they're still talking about it."

But because of the course's length they turned in scores that were probably the highest in LPGA history. "We are out to amend that situation so that par becomes a little more accessible."

Prince Mac Takes Raceway Feature

MONTICELLO — A portent of possible things to come was foreseen in Monticello Raceway's featured fourth race which was a pace for two-year-olds, and Wednesday night the most promising youngster proved to be Prince Mac, driven by his owner, Al Burton, who cut the mile in 2:04.4.

Prince Mac's victory was all the more sweet because he came from far behind to brush past the heavily-favored leaders in the home stretch. They were the highly regarded Hempstead Triumph driven by Fred Bradbury; Avon Marian, George Gilmour the driver; and General Dayan with Clint Galbraith at the reins.

Homestead Triumph, who was coupled as an entry with Winchester Josie, let the fans know that the field was distinguished when he led a tightly packed formation through the quarter in :30 flat.

Then the lead was assumed by Avon Marion who rushed through the half in 1:01 even, and who also set the time for the three-quarters in 1:32.3.

By that time, it was General Dayan's turn who took over front position at that point and maintained it as the lead horses rounded the paddock turn.

Prince Mac was in the five hole when they entered the final stretch and it was from there that he began his brush, beating out General Dayan by a length at the wire. Scot's Hobby, John Edmunds driving, was the third horse, two lengths behind the leader. Once-leading Hempstead Triumph finished fourth, five lengths behind Prince Mac, and Avon Marian ended fifth, nine lengths from the winner.

Prince Mac is by Grand Time-Fair Edna by Greentree Adios and has had four starts in 1969. His record now stands at 3 firsts and one third, and he shaved two seconds flat from his previously established winning record time of 2:06.4.

The daily double started off with a two-year-old pace which was captured in 2:08 even by Rockville Brook in her first time out in her career. A filly by Might Tide-Rocky Brook by Eben Scot, she was driven by her trainer and co-owner, Levi Harner, who shares the proprietorship with Eldon Harner.

The second race pace for three-year-old maidens was taken by Easter Cloud, a filly out of Battle Prince-Hi-Lo's Easter, also driven by her trainer and owner, in this case, Jimmy Wingfield. The time was 2:08.4. The combination of 8 and 5 returned $49.80.

During press conference Morrall said he would have to talk with Coach Don Shula, Carroll Rosenbloom, teammates and his family before making a decision. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Perry's, Strangegloves, Esposito's Lead League

KINGSTON — Perry's Grill combined steady scoring and good pitching to defeat the Shamrock Grill, 12-2, Wednesday night, taking over first place in the American Division of the City Slow Pitch League. In other games, Hercules downed McDonald's, 19-11, and Blue Gardenia moved into a second-place tie with a forfeit win over the Deaf Club.

Don Wells, Sam Perry and Charlie Bishop were the hitting stars for Perry's. Wells went four-for-five with two homers and four RBIs. Perry was three-for-four, with a home run, and Bishop went two-for-four, both hits being homers.

Dave Lowe had a perfect three-for-three for the losers, including a double and a homer.

Hercules hitters Dennie Klonowski, George Barnes, George Bunt and Richard Terpening lowered the boom on McDonald pitching for 26 hits and 19 runs. All four men clobbered homers for the winners.

Palladino New Ehmke

KINGSTON — The Daily Freeman's composing room softball team showed up at Hutton Park Wednesday evening ready to pounce on the patsies from the editorial department.

They got a helluva surprise, instead. They got whomped 12-3, as Ed Palladino, the assistant city editor put on the greatest pitching performance since Howard Ehmke of the 1929 Philadelphia Athletics.

"He's the greatest," choursed the editorial boys in the rosy afterglow of their spectacular upset, while upstairs, where the brainchilds of the reporters (like this one) is put into cold type, there was nothing but deep gloom and the prevailing color was red.

Undismayed by a "pitching mound" that resembled a moon crater, Palladino wrote The Big Story in brilliant fashion. He limited the typo's collection of pros and amateurs to five hits and a series of popups. He lost his bid for a shutout in the very last inning when a trio of reporters converged on a pop fly and all three neglected to make the catch. The typos poured through for three runs.

General Manager Richard L. (Dick) Treat, whose eyesight was seriously questioned by both sides, presented Palladino with the game ball as a memento of the occasion.

Meanwhile, Len Bovee, the manager of the Typos, fortuitously off duty today, is reported to have recommended a noted optometrist for the GM.

Led by Jim Massa's two home runs, the reporters clobbered Don Koeppen, a former professional softball pitcher, for 13 hits and broke the game open with a five-run outburst in the very first inning.

The reporters had other heroes besides Palladino and Massa. Like Hugh Reynolds, the city hall reporter, and Managing Editor Peter W. Berrecchia. Both hit "homers" and played superbly on defense.

Berrecchia collared a vicious line drive at third base. The reporters applauded.

"It was strictly in self defense," sneered one of the disgruntled typos.

The "game" set the sport back a few centuries and the typos a few bucks for a cooler keg.

"It was just a game," said Bob Steeger, the composing room foreman, hiding his disappointment with great fortitude. "We want a return game," he said.

"Some chance," was the chorus from downstairs.

* * *

Editor's Note: Now about this Ehmke guy. Back in the 1929 World Series, Connie Mack, then manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, passed over the immortal Lefty Grove in favor of Ehmke for the opener against the St. Louis Cardinals.

It created a sensation, but Ehmke stopped the Cards, 3-1 and set a World Series record of 13 strikeouts at that time.

He gave the Cards an awful surprise, but not like the one Eddie gave the typos.

Seek Youth, Charged With Assault 3rd

MARLBORO

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of a 19-year-old Milton youth charging him with two counts of third degree assault as the result of an incident near here Wednesday in which two troopers were injured.

Highland State Police said Lloyd Town Justice Lin Baker signed warrants charging Dwight Peterson with assaulting State Police Sgt. D.R. Baker and Trooper J. E. Hornbeck.

Baker and Hornbeck were on a routine traffic check on Route 9W yesterday when the troopers stopped a car driven by Charles Patterson, 20, of Milton, who was summoned for driving with unsafe tires, according to Trooper Stanley Roberts.

Authorities said Peterson was a passenger in Patterson's car and he emerged from the vehicle and became abusive to Hornbeck. During a scuffle Peterson allegedly punched the trooper knocking him to the ground. Baker went to assist the trooper and Peter allegedly punched him causing abrasions and laceration of the lip. Hornbeck also received a laceration of the lips.

Peterson reportedly took off and fled into the woods. Search for him was conducted but the youth was not found. Troopers said efforts would be made today to locate Peterson.

Phone Hike Proposal Goes Before PSC

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A proposal for telephone rate increases went before the Public Service Commission Wednesday — increases which could boost basic telephone service charges by 10.5 per cent.

The hearings were part of a statewide series in which New York Telephone Co. is seeking its first general increase since 1957. The company revenues would increase some $175 million if the proposal is approved.

A New York City group, the American Telephone Consumers' Council, asked that the hearings be adjourned until a so-called service crisis" is resolved. Their motion was deferred by PSC Commissioner Edward Larkin.

A company witness said the increase was necessary to keep the firm competitive, and that service would improve.

Dr. J. Rhoads Foster, an economic consultant, said the company was becoming less attractive to investors. They must be convinced future company earnings will offer a good rate or return in comparison with other firms, he said.

Most telephone subscribers would be affected by the boost. For example, the $6 flat - rate monthly charge in Albany would go up to $6.63, and in Buffalo it would go from $6.75 to $7.46.

Cost of installing a residential phone would double but the charge for extension instruments or color phones would not change.

Person - to - person calls and other services involving the use of operators would go up, so that a direct-dialed Albany-New York City call might be as little as 44 cents while the same call placed through an operator would cost $1.08, regardless of the time of day.

The Albany hearings were scheduled to last through the week. Others will be conducted July 23 in Syracuse, July 24 in Buffalo, Aug. 6 in Albany and Aug. 21 in New York City.

MEDAL OF HONOR WINNERS — President Nixon today presented the Medal of Honor to three soldiers killed during the North Vietnamese offensive in the Central Highlands of Vietnam in May 1967. The wives of the men will accept the Medals in a private White House ceremony. The men are LTR: Sgt. Bruce A. Grandstaff; PFC. Leslie A. Bellrichard; and S/Sgt. Frankie Z. Molnar. All were members of the U. S. 4th Infantry Divisions 1st Battalion, 8th Infantry. (DEFENSE DEPT. FILE PHOTOS VIA UPI TELEPHOTO).

Postal Clerks Oppose Nixon's Reform Plans

KINGSTON

The nation's organized postal clerks are mustering active opposition in Congress against the Administration's proposal for a postal corporation "for what it fails to do," a top union official said here today.

Leo A. Schupp of Kingston, president of Local 4770, United Federation of Postal Clerks, AFL-CIO, listed three major objections to pending legislation which would convert the postal service into a Government corporation:

"First," Schupp said, "it fails to give employes the right to strike even though we would no longer have civil service status.

"Secondly, it fails to give us unilateral access to binding arbitration.

"Third, it fails to establish true wage comparability with private industry prior to the transfer of employes into corporate structure."

The Kingston Local spokesman cited an additional reason why the union, which represents the nation's 300,000 postal clerks, is mobilizing opposition to the bill in its present form.

"It would definitely make employes public scapegoats," Schupp explained, "by tying postal rates to every future salary increase."

"In other words," he added, "postal employes would be the only large group of federal workers whose wages and fringe benefits would depend on the corporation's ability to pay either at the level of current rates (extremely doubtful) or by forcing the public to pay increased fees for mail service."

Schupp said the union's national leadership had reached its decision "reluctantly" and "only after fruitless consultation with top postal officials in Washington and a thorough study of the legislation itself."

He charged that the "Postmaster General himself has failed to give any consideration to the fact that even with the meager 4.1 per cent pay increase effective in mid-July postal clerks are still more than $800-a-year behind their counterparts in the private sector as of June, 1968—to say nothing of the astronomical rise in the cost of living during the 13 months since that time."

Schupp emphasized that postal employes "do recognize the need for postal reform," and are supporting the Postal Reform Act (H.R. 4) proposed by Rep. Thaddeus J. Dulski, D-N. Y., chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

He said even this bill needs to be amended, however, to establish statutory labor-management procedures and true collective bargaining for postal workers in place of the very limited, management-weighted bargaining presently in effect through a presidential executive order. He asks that friends of postal employees, in their letters to their congressmen, endorse (H.R. 4) the Postal Reform Act with government retention of the Post Office.

Schupp also released the following statement of policy of his union on strikes, slowdowns or work stoppages.

"The United Federation of Postal Clerks, (AFL-CIO) does not condone any actions which can be interpreted as work stoppages including (1) mass sick leave calls . . . (2) strikes or any related activities which could be interpreted as a strike." Schupp stated that in spite of understandable frustrated feelings of the postal employee his union feels that resolution of their problems lie with the Congress and President. The Post Office and Civil Service Committees of both houses of Congress are moving forward in their consideration of legislation which, when adopted, will in our opinion correct many of the problems which are causing these frustrations!"

The Postal Clerks will meet Saturday at 8 p. m. at the Capri to discuss their problems and to hear a report from Congressman Hamilton Fish on the status of legislation in Washington.

Introducing a Used Car Guarantee It Doesn't Come With Every Car

It's a 100% guarantee. Not one of those "we-pay-half-you-pay-half deals."

And it comes only with used cars that pass the Volkswagen 16 point Safety and performance test.

This is how it works. When we get a car as a trade-in, we give it the inspection. Check it out completely. If it passes, we tune up, tighten, repair or replace everything that needs tuning up, tightening, repairing or replacing.

Then we guarantee it 100% repair or replacement of all major mechanical parts* for 30 days or 1000 miles.

What kind of cars get our guarantees? All kinds. Chevys. Fords. Ramblers. VWs. (We get all kinds of trade-ins for new Volkswagens.)

So. The next time somebody tries to sell you a used car that's "just like new," ask about the guarantee. Then remember us.

No, our used cars aren't "just like new". No used car can be. But no used cars could be in better shape, either.

COLONIAL BEAUTY
Up-to-date styling is accented in this modern colonial designed two story home. A true "Show Place," with a professionally decorated interior. Recaptures Early American charm. A center hall entry, 4 huge bedrms., 2 exquisite baths and 1st floor powder room affords the perfect floor plan. A modern country style kitchen with self-cleaning range, dishwasher and cherry wood finished cabinets will leave you breathless. Of course, there's a wood burning fireplace and formal din. rm., too. Nicely set among other homes of distinction. In the town of Ulster on a wooded site with oversized 2 car garage and community water supplied. Current cost prohibits reproduction for the $39,900 established price.

WANTED
$40-$55,000 HOME
I have a wonderful family for your home if it qualifies. We're looking for a 4-5 bedroom old or new home with charm in nice condition w/2 or more baths and 2 car garage. Preferably in the suburbs. A riverfront home would be the greatest as they have a boat, but it's not essential. If you're considering selling please give me a call. Yours may be just what they are looking for.

Dear Abby

Everything But Love

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: People think we are a happy pair with nice children and a lovely home. We have many interests and lots of friends. This is only on the surface. In reality, I am only the housekeeper. My husband has no time for me. He is so busy helping Tom, Dick and Harry. I rarly see him. My love life is almost nonexistent.

Life is so short, it's a pity to live like this, but I have made my bed. Despite our religion, I'd leave him if it weren't for the children because I know he will never change. I am sure there are other unhappy wives here. Belfast men are so unloving.

"UNHAPPY IN IRELAND"

DEAR UNHAPPY: Belfast men are no less "loving" than other men. Your complaint is universal, Madame. And the solution is so obvious, I'm surprised you haven't thought of it yourself. Stop playing the role of the abused and martyred wife, and "kill" your man with kindness.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother (I'll call him Danny) and his wife have separated after many years of marriage. I invited Danny to my home for Sunday dinner and he accepted. Then he called my husband at the office and asked if he could bring a date. Without asking me, my husband said he could.

When I was told of this, I let my husband know that I did not approve of it. In the first place Danny isn't divorced yet, and in the second place we have children at home and I don't think it's right for them to see their uncle with a date while he is still married.

Well, my husband insisted, telling me how depressed Danny was, etc., so I gave in, but I made sure my children weren't home that evening.

Now, my husband tells me that Danny is coming for Sunday dinner again, and he is bringing a girl. A different one! I am furious with my husband for being so wishy washy. I think it is wrong to receive a married man's dates in my home. What is your opinion?

OLD FASHIONED

DEAR OLD: I go along with you. And I also think it's inconsiderate of your husband to trap you into entertaining people you do not want in your home. It's YOUR home, too.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on something I consider vital to a good marriage. I disapprove of a married man taking his secretary out to or dinner, or even for a drink after office hours.

My husband says it is a nice way to show his appreciation for extra work, or a job well done. What do you say?

GEMINI

DEAR GEMINI: I say, if a boss wants to show "appreciation" he should try money.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for the letter from "BITTER," who asked if she could take legal action against the dirty rat who told his wife EVERYTHING in order to relieve her of all the anguish he had caused her.

It's the best laugh I've had since my husband decided to relieve ME of all the anguish he'd caused me for the same reason.

She sounds like the same ding-a-ling my husband had his romp with, except SHE threatened to sue ME for calling her "a lady of ill repute" — only I didn't use such refined language.

What do these gals expect from their back alley intimacies with married men who use them with no intention of leaving their wives? It would be interesting to hear from some of these ladies. All of us "relieved-of-anguish" wives could use a good laugh.

WE'VE CRIED ENOUGH

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY.. JULY 11, 1969

MENU HINT: Lunar position today emphasizes the impromptu. Snacks, delightful hors d'oeuvres and white wine could turn evening into festive occasion. Avoid the "heavy," both in food and conversation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Important to follow through on idea. Don't delegate duties. Turn on charm. You can win your way to success. Smile, utilize sense of humor. Study MENU HINT for entertainment purposes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get solution to money question. Key is to stick with project. New start now could be premature. You are appealing. Many are drawn to you. Among them, one is very helpful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Now you can make successful contacts. Circumstances favor original ideas, efforts. Put forth opinions, but in diplomatic manner. Avoid scattering your forces.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What you know can now be more practically utilized. You get chance to demonstrate capabilities. Remain practical. Don't trade something for nothing. Be on guard against false flattery.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You gain greater understanding of personal desires. You get clear picture of relationship with others. Tonight a social occasion could bring genuine pleasure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stick to relegant issues. You can find ways of adding to joys, comforts of life. Key is to sight goal and aim in direct fashion. Be aware of details, necessities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Don't be satisfied merely that something happened. Find out why. You can obtain needed answers. Key is to ask in interested manner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be envious of possessions of others. Realize that those who love you do so for you — not for what you own. Important to straighten this concept within yourself. Do so. Now.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on how you handle delicate situation. Key is to be discreet. Could involve mate, partner, others who are close. Lie low. Play waiting game.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get on solid ground. You gain greater perception. Practical issues demand attention. If you concentrate, you gain. Otherwise, there is needless delay.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on children, creative endeavors. Your efforts can gain wider audience. Key is to see project as a whole. Don't be bogged down with details.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Attention centers around home base. New approach is necessary. Be independent without appearing arrogant. State views in objective manner. Then you obtain results.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY difficult period will pass. You can meet individual who adds zest to your life. You are intuitive, capable of determining future trends.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

NORMAL? (Q.) I'm 18½. I've never dated girls or had much to do with them.

But I often dream of a love affair like the one in "Romeo and Juliet." I saw the movie not long ago, and now I find myself imitating, or trying to imitate, Romeo. I thought he was very handsome.

Then I realized that I'm no Romeo. I wouldn't know what to do with a girl if I had the chance.

Is it normal for a boy to be the way I am? I worry very much about this because when I was small I think I did some things which people might consider "not normal." But that was a long time ago.

If I am normal, how can I find the girl that is right for me? What will girls my age think when they find out that love is all new to me?

I have so many questions about life, sex, and other things. Please tell me that other boys have gone through this, too. I want so much to be normal.—A Reader in Michigan.

(A.) Many boys 18½ years old have never had a date with a girl. Many have experienced feelings like you describe. You are not alone.

You may be overly concerned about being "normal." I am sending you the name of an excellent reference which I suggest you find at a library and read.

Having done this, I believe you will come to an awareness of who you are—that you are you, and there is no one else on earth exactly like you.

Awaking to and accepting this fact does wonders for people concerned about "normality" and "abnormailty."

A good straight-from-the-shoulder talk with your family physician will also help you, especially if, as you indicate, you have sexual fears.

If further specialized treatment is indicated, he will advise you.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

While most individuals agree with Franklin P. Adams' quip about his boys, "Gentlemen, I love and like you,/Caring little for your IQ," the Army, schools and industry base their "liking" on how well a candidate does on an intelligence test. The French psychologist, Alfred Binet, The World Almanac says, introduced the first standard test of intelligence in 1905.

Efrem's Tips Help the FBI

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The FBI has one surefire means of capturing the men on its "10 most wanted" list: A television show.

Producer Quinn Martin, guiding "The FBI" show into its fifth year, has the star, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., appear at the end of every fourth show to announce that a particular felon is being sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

A mug shot of the miscreant is flashed on millions of sets across the country accompanied by Zimbalist's description of the wanted man.

And presto! Within a short time tips begin arriving at various FBI offices and the desperado is apprehended.

"We've been running those most-wanted tags for more than two years now," Martin said with a measure of pride. "And so far they've captured every single one of them."

Thus far Martin has produced 2,114 episodes in the series involving kidnaping, murder, Communist espionage, ultra-left militants, right wing crackpots, extortionists and every sort of criminal.

All cases are taken from the FBI files.

"It should be noted we are given access only to closed cases," Martin said. "And the bureau has been helpful in giving us technical advice so that we don't film anything to distort its work."

Martin said that in four years the FBI has never interfered with the story content of a show except to say, "We wouldn't handle it that way."

Martin receives an average 800 letters a month from viewers. Surprisingly, many are from FBI agents who say they enjoy the show and the image the actors present makes their jobs easier.

"Those agents who write say the public reacts to the show by demonstrating more respect for them," Martin said.

"As for the letters from other viewers, about 99 per cent of them are favorable. One thing we get is a recurrent theme of thanks for not playing down to the audience.

So far as he knows, Martin has received no mail from the criminals apprehended by telecasting their pictures and descriptions—or maybe they account for that other 1 per cent.

"All butchers don't wear white aprons," remarked the young expert. "I played with one the other day. Of course, I shouldn't have put him in seven but he had promised never to bid a no-trump with less than 16 high-card points. This time he had only 15."

It seems that the so-called butcher had played out dummy's king and queen of diamonds and then proceeded to go down because West held four diamonds to the jack and East the long spades. We can't go along with calling this South a butcher. We feel that only an expert in very good form would have worked out the winning line of play. Here it is:

South wins the spade in dummy and notes that West had almost surely opened a short suit. Then he cashes four clubs, discarding two spades from dummy. He notes that East has shown up with four cards in that suit. Now South runs off three hearts and is careful to discard his seven of diamonds. East follows to the hearts also and, in addition South has noticed that West discarded a heart on the fourth club.

At this point, expert South has some sort of count on the East and West hands. At least, enough of a count so he is pretty sure that West started out with either three or four diamonds. Then he leads a diamond to his ace and sees the eight-spot drop from West. South has to decide right here and now if that eight was a singleton. If he makes the right decision, he leads his 10 of diamonds and lets it ride if West doesn't cover with the jack.

If West does cover, South returns to his hand with the king of spades and now we see why he had to get rid of the diamond seven. He can lead the three and win with dummy's six if West plays the five.

Mansfield on Cutback

'Just Drop in a Bucket'

WASHINGTON (AP) —Senate Democratic leaders have quietly approved a call for a far greater cutback in U. S. troop strength in Europe than now planned by the White House.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield described as inadequate President Nixon's order to withdraw some 15,000 military men from overseas bases during the next year.

The White House did not disclose the specific areas involved, but the order announced Wednesday exempted Vietnam and other spots of trouble and tension.

Right Step . . . But

"This is a step in the right direction, but it's only a drop in the bucket," Mansfield said in an interview.

It was learned the Senate Democratic Policy Committee the forthcoming 15,000 man recall. "The only thing to do is accelerate it."

He said the United States is maintaining 2,700 bases, 400 of them major installations, covering 4,000 square miles in 30 foreign nations.

All told, he said, some 1.75 million troops, dependents and employes are based overseas.

Mansfield said it would represent real progress if those figures were cut in half.

The White House announced 14,900 men will be brought back to the United States during the next year "in the interests of lesseming budget and balance of payments costs and of reducing the American presence overseas."

This, plus a reduction of some 5,100 civilian employes abroad, could lead to eventual balance of payments savings of $75 million, the White House said.

Civilian payroll cutbacks are to be general, including a 10 per cent reduction in South Vietnam.

But the military cuts do not apply to forces in Vietnam, South Korea, Berlin, to other areas of Southeast Asia where U.S. forces support military operations, or to manpower committee to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Presumably, this means reductions in U.S. forces in Spain, Japan, and Turkey.

The kind of cutbacks Mansfield wants would have to come in the NATO area, exempt from the Nixon order.

228,000 in West Germany

The United States has 228,000 men in West Germany alone.

Mansfield said the Germans are in far better economic shape than the United States to provide forces for their defense.

But he added:

"It isn't balance of payments, it isn't Vietnam, it's principle—an occupation army a quarter century later."

"The fact that the government might like them there," Mansfield said, "doesn't mean that the people want to have them there."

Meanwhile, West Germany agreed Wednesday to provide $1.52 billion in the next two years to help mainain American troops and their dependents in Germany.

The Soviet Naval Move— Admirals Take Tame View

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's admirals, who have thundered for years about the growing Soviet naval challenge, are unusually restrained about a Russian squadron making a "show the flag" voyage to Cuba.

Sources indicated one reason stems from a State Department desire to treat the Soviet naval move in low key, to avoid a Moscow blast against U.S. fleet operations in international waters adjoining Russian territory.

Two U.S. destroyers last month cruised the Black Sea for four days to demonstrate this country's right to sail there.

American fleet units also concentrated in the Sea of Japan, a few hundred miles from Vladivostok, during crises growing out of the North Korean seizure of the U.S.S. Pueblo and the downing of a Navy reconnaissance plane.

Asked for his assessment of the voyage of seven Russian naval vessels toward Cuba, Adm. Thomas Moorer, chief of Naval Operations, limited himself to this statement: "Naturally, the United States Navy is interested in the movement of Soviet Naval ships to Cuba, and Atlantic fleet units will conduct routine surveillance of these ships during their transit.

"This surveillance is normal in nature. Our Navy carries out similar suveillance of Soviet units in other parts of the world, just as is the case with the Soviets' observance of our deployed ships."

This had a much tamer sound than Moorer's warning to Congress earlier this year that "We are confronted by a fomidable and expanding threat to our supremacy at sea" from the Soviet navy.

Repeatedly, Moorer and other admirals have noted with concern the Russian build up of a formidable naval force in the Mediterranean, their cruise into Indian Ocean waters where they never before were seen, and the extension of their submarine and surface operations far into the Pacific and the Atlantic.

The Soviet voyage, described by Russia as "a friendly visit" to Communist Cuba from July 20 to 27, comes at a time when the Senate is debating a defense bill containing authorization for the Navy's shipbuilding program.

Some backers of the Navy are hoping the Russian voyage will remind the Senate of past warnings by the admirals that the Soviet Union is ominously extending its seaward reach.

The Russian ships are traveling in two groups, last reported by U.S. patrol planes as at least 600 miles away from the U.S. East Coast.

Traveling in one group are three modern guided missile warships and a support vessel.

The other element includes two submarines and a submarine tender.

Borman—An Emotional Farewell

MOSCOW (UPI)—Astronaut Frank Borman in an emotional farewell to his Soviet hosts promised today to ask U.S. officials to invite Soviet cosmonauts to America.

Borman indicated the invitation already had been agreed on in principle but that formal approval still had to be given in the United States.

The astronaut said he expected to speak with President Nixon about his 10-day Soviet tour when the President watches the Apollo 11 moonflight later this month.

Borman, his wife and sons, flew to London today after a final round of handshakes with the Soviet spacemen at Sheremetyevo Airport.

During an airport news conference Borman said "I fully intend to ask the people in NASA to extend an invitation and I am sure it will be done."

Invitation to Visit U.S.

But he warned the invitation may not include a view of an American space launch. Borman said it was already too late for a Soviet cosmonaut to attend the Apollo 11 shot.

"The invitation we will give will be to visit the United States, not specifically to see a launch. If it happened the trip coincided with a launch I would be happy to be their host there," he said.

Borman toured widely in the Soviet Union during his stay and saw a number of space installations. But he was not taken to the Soviet Space Center and launch pad at Baikonur in Central Asia.

He disclosed today he had been given a close-up view of the Soviet TU144 airliner, the first supersonic jetliner to fly. It now is undergoing extensive tests before going into service with the Soviet airline Aeroflot.

Susan Borman was near tears as she spoke of the visit.

Enjoys 10 Days

I don't think this family has enjoyed 10 days in our lives so much as this last 10 days," she said.

Later as she said farewell to Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov's wife, who was with the Bormans on most of their travels here, Mrs. Borman wept and daubed at her eyes with a handkerchief.

Although the goodbyes were emotional, the Borman lightheartedness which the Russians have admired so much kept breaking through.

Talking to cosmonaut Maj. Gen. Georgi Beregovoi, Borman informally reiterated his invitation. He said he hoped Beregovoi could visit the United States and I can introduce you to the wonders of tequila. That's Mexican vodka."

Cosmonauts Titov, Beregovoi, and Konstantin Feoktistov, their space program chief Gen. Nikolai Kamanin, and officials of the Union of Soviet Friendship Societies who were Borman's official hosts all were at the airport for the 7:30 a.m. press conference and the goodbyes.

Egypt Commandos In Action Again

By United Press International

Egyptian commandos crossed the Suez Canal today for the second time in four days and blew up five Israeli gun positions in the occupied Sinai Peninsula, an Egyptian military spokesman said. Israel denied the report.

The Egyptian command said two platoons of commandos along with military engineers cut barbed wire barricades and, without arousing Israeli sentries, destroyed the bunkers.

The Egyptian command said all the commandos returned to their base without casualties after the three-hour operation.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli army officials said: "There is no evidence of any crossing and no damage to any of our positions."

On yet another front, Jordanian military spokesman said Israeli forces opened tank and machine-gun fire on a Jordanian patrol three miles south of the Sea of Galilee today. The spokesman said the fighting erupted at Al Adassiyah but there were no Jordanian casualties.

In Gaza City Wednesday night, Arab guerrillas hurled two grenades at an Israeli bank, shattering windows.

Jordanian Prime Minister Abdel Moneim el Rifai said today his country opposes military escalation against Israel because of the threat of war.

Rifai denied reports that Jordan would actually crack down on Palestinian commandos operating against Israel from Jordanian territory.

Fire in Michigan Kills 10 Persons

POSEN, Mich. (UPI)—A fire swept through a farmhouse near this small northern Michigan community early today, killing some 10 persons, police reported.

State Police at Alpena said the fire at the Anthony Gralewicz home near Lake Augusta still was too hot at 4 a.m. (EDT) for firemen to determine the exact number of victims or investigate the cause.

The Fire Department in this community of 341 persons near Lower Michigan's northern tip answered the call about 2 a.m., Presque Isle County sheriff's deputies reported.

State police said it was believed Gralewicz shared the farmhouse with his son and daughter-in-law's family.

Driver Cited After Crash

KINGSTON

Joseph G. Staccio, 38, of 13 Willow Street, was cited by police Wednesday for driving at a speed not reasonable and prudent after his car was involved in a collision on Foxhall Avenue at the intersection of Shufeldt Street.

Police reports noted that Staccio was driving on Foxhall Avenue and Kathleen A. DeCiccio, 27, of 275 Clifton Avenue was entering the intersection in a car when the vehicles collided. After the impact, police reported, Staccio's car continued on and crashed into the building occupied as Raftery's Garage at 183 Foxhall Avenue, causing extensive damage. No injuries were reported.

Curtis Clinkscales, 50, of 303 Foxhall Avenue, was summoned on charges of being an unlicensed driver, failure to produce a registration certificate and having no proof of insurance.

Charles W. Howell, 21, of East Kingston, was cited for unlicensed operation.

All summonses are returnable in City Court.

IBM Charges Competitor Uses Trade Secrets

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The International Business Machines Corp. has charged that a tiny competitor is using confidential IBM information and trade secrets.

The giant computer corporation filed suit in Supreme Court Wednesday against the Cogar Corp., president George R. Cogar and 66 employers, all former IBM workers. The Cogar Corp. produces semi - conductor memories used in data processing.

A spokesman for Cogar said it was inconceivable that his firm could be a threat to IBM, which ranks seventh in sales among all corporations in the country. Cogar has headquarters in Wappingers Falls, near Poughkeepsie and several IBM plants.

An IBM spokesman said the suit asked that the Cogar Corp. and its employes be enjoined from using any confidential IBM information. The suit also demands the return of all notes, memoranda, manuals, drawings and specifications relating to confidential IBM information.

The complaint said 66 of the workers had worked in IBM's components division and resigned their positions after last November. When employed by IBM, the complaint said, they had executed nondisclosure agreements.

But Left With A Hole

Bayou 'Quarter' Wins Out

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The city's old French Quarter, long a mecca for fun-loving tourists, has been saved from the intrusion of a six-lane highway.

The highway project was officially put to death in Washington Wednesday, leaving defenders of tradition in a state of euphoria and the city with a $1.3 million hole in the ground.

John A. Volpe, secretary of transportation, confirmed reports that the federal government had withdrawn financial support for the expressway as part of the interstate highway network.

Construction of the road, Volpe declared, "would have seriously impaired the historic quality of the French Quarter."

That's what landmark preservationists led by Martha Robinson and Mark Lowrey have been saying all along.

The Quarter is an original old square of New Orleans in the center of the city.

It is familiar to thousands of tourists who have wandered its narrow streets and reveled in its bars and nightclubs.

The expressway was vigorously backed by business groups as a necessity for quicker movement of traffic.

The decision in favor of preservation left an embarrassing cavity under the recently completed Rivergate, a big convention facility at the foot of Canal Street. It's a tunnel which was to have connected with the expressway.

Now the 690-foot tunnel goes nowhere.

Mayor Victor H. Schiro said some use must be found for the big hole in the ground. He got quite a few suggestions.

"They now have a beautiful place to grow mushrooms," said J. W. Simon Jr., executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.
